PREFACE.

To the Class of 1880:

After saying to you in March that I was so busy that I did not see where I was to find time for this report, I sailed suddenly for Europe and did not return until the report was almost ready for the printers' hands. The accumulation of work lying in wait for me when I landed made it impossible to give much personal attention to the report, and for the first time I employed assistance. If I had not, it could not have been distributed at the triennial dinner, but would have been put forward until September.

I regret sincerely one fault for which my absence is accountable. I had made no provision for memorial notices for some of our classmates who have died, and it was not possible to attend to this after my return. The notices will be prepared this summer and mailed to the class, and in the next class report they will be printed in full.

For another defect in this report I will make no apology. There are over thirty graduate members of the class who have not been heard from, and I here pillory them as follows: Alley, Atwood, Benton, Blodgett, Brackett, Butler, Chapman, Cole, Ellis, Gooch, Griswold, A. L. Hall, Harrison, Henderson, Hibbard, Houston, Howe, Jordan, Kenneson, Learned, Lester, Morgan, Muzzey, O'Callaghan, Parker, H. M. Perry, Pew, Sharp, Townsend, Trimble, Weld, Whitcomb, F. D. White. To each one of them three notices of this report have been mailed,— March 15th, April 15th, and May 15th,— and I know no reason why the secretary should tease them further for what should interest them as much as him. If I had been at home, however, I should have obtained some word from most of them.

The record received shows a body of men who are an honor to their Alma Mater as she is to them. They are respected and valuable in their communities, and they are serviceable fighters in the battles of peace. Nearly every one is a good citizen, and a good citizen is a tower of strength in this land.

Cordially yours,

FREDERIC ALMY.

RECORD OF THE CLASS.

1890 — 1895.

The information contained in the following pages was received in reply to these questions :

(1.) Residence and occupation since 1890. When and where admitted as a member of your profession or business. If in business, with what firm.

(2.) If married since last report, give time and place, residence and maiden name of wife, and her parents' names in full. Give names of children since last report, with dates of birth. Death of wife or children, with dates.

(3.) Journeys made in foreign countries. Give dates.

(4.) Offices which you have held, with time of appointment and continuance ; college degrees received, membership of clubs and societies.

(5.) Political, scientific, literary or commercial activity ; authorship of books, pamphlets, magazine articles, etc., with exact titles and dates of publication ; addresses made before public meetings.

(6.) Any other circumstances or experiences which may be interesting to the class.

FREDERICK HOBBS ALLEN.

New York, March 12. — "My occupation has been the same since 1890, to wit, the practice of the law.

"I was married in New York City on June 30, 1892, to Adèle Livingston Stevens, daughter of Frederic William Stevens and Adèle de Talleyrand-Perigord, Duchesse de Dino.

"We have a son, born in Paris, June 15, 1894. His name is Frederic Stevens Allen.

"I made trips to Europe in 1891 and 1892, and during 1893 and 1894 spent a year and a half in England and France.

"Address, Bolton Priory, Pelham Manor, N. Y."

RUSSELL CARPENTER ALLEN.

National City, Cal., March 30.—"Since June, 1890, I have been Vice-President and General Manager of the Sweetwater Fruit Company, which was organized at that time to plant orchards and grow fruit near San Diego. The specialty is lemons, for which the district is particularly adapted.

"I have retained the ownership of my own ranch near El Cajon and in connection with that have carried on a packing and shipping business in raisins, under the style of El Cajon Packing Company.

"I have had one child born since the last report, Eleanor Bradford, October 27, 1891."

WILLIAM HENRY ALLEY.

Has not been heard from. His address is lost.

FREDERIC ALMY.

Buffalo, June 6.—"I still live in Buffalo in winter, and in summer at a country house 18 miles out from Buffalo, which my brother and I bought in 1892, and which we have named 'Jericho.' In May, 1894, I became secretary and treasurer of the Charity Organization Society of Buffalo, which has the honor of being the first society of its kind in America. I am still secretary of the Buffalo Civil Service Reform Association, an old, aggressive and successful organization, and since 1893 I have been general manager of the Fresh Air Mission. I was glad to help as one of a committee of six which organized several Good Government clubs in Buffalo last fall, and I was on the organization committee of the Liberal Club, a club of about 250 members, started in 1891, which holds monthly dinners at which speakers from abroad address the club on serious questions. Roosevelt addressed the club January 26, 1893, on 'The Duties of American Citizenship,' and it was an evening long to be remembered for its value and inspiration.

"I am one of the authors of 'The Niagara Book,' published in Buffalo in 1893. It contained articles also by Howells, Shaler, Mark Twain, and other well-known writers, but the pride of this association was the only compensation I received for my work, as the book was a failure financially. I am also one of the authors of a musical burlesque of Trilby, after the Hasty Pudding style, which took Buffalo by surprise this spring and enriched the treasury of the Charity Organization Society. I have contributed a few articles to the Charities Review, a New York monthly magazine.

"In July, 1892, I sailed for Liverpool on the City of New York, returning on the City of Paris in October, after a hasty trip as far east as Innsbruck and as far south as Florence. In March, 1895, I sailed for Gibraltar on the Werra, returning in May on the Touraine. I spent the time wholly in southern Spain and southern Italy. It was a great pleasure, but this class report has suffered in consequence of it.

"I am a member of the Thursday Club, the Saturn Club, and the newly established University Club. At the Saturn Club I had the doubtful honor of receiving a first prize for lying at a Munchausen Evening held at its club house last February."

WILLIAM S. ANDREWS.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 24.—"I am still practising law at Syracuse, N. Y., and expect to be here for the next five years."

CHARLES EDWARD ATWOOD.

Has not been heard from.

ROBERT BACON.

NEW YORK, April 30.—"I have come to New York to live. My address will be 23 Wall Street, and my residence New York, as I have lately become a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., of this city. The few trips that I have made abroad are of no importance. My term as Overseer expires this year. My daughter, Martha Beatrix Bacon, was born July 4, 1890, which is since last report, I believe."

HENRY CUTLER BALDWIN.

Boston, March 21.—"Since 1890 I have been practising medicine, and have lived at 126 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston. I was married in London, September 29, 1894, to May (Hamelin) Widney, daughter of John Lawrence Hamelin and Theresa Brown Hamelin. I spent four months in England in 1890, and travelled for two months in England and France in 1894. I am a member of the University Club, and am assistant physician in the department for nervous diseases at the Massachusetts General Hospital."

MORTON BARROWS.

St. Paul, Minn., April 23.—"My personal and business career have been alike uneventful; I have increased neither the wealth nor population of the world; I have written one poem and my physicians say I will never entirely recover; two of my critics are still in the penitentiary. I believe in the unlimited coinage of gold and think all lawyers should be subsidized by Government. My address for the present remains St. Paul, Minnesota."

HENRY TAYLOR BARSTOW.

Boston, May 7.—"I have practised medicine at 9 Beacon St., Boston, since 1890. Took my degree from Harvard Medical School in '84. Spent the winter of '89 and '90 in Vienna, Austria. Everything has been very quiet and uneventful since the last report, and nothing of any interest to the class has occurred."

NATHANIEL CILLEY BARTLETT.

Haverhill, Mass., Mar. 25.—"Since 1890 I have resided at Haverhill, Mass., and have been practising law. I was admitted to the bar in 1882. I have no partner. I am unmarried. I was a member of the Common Council of Haverhill in 1889 and 1890, and a representative from the Second Essex District to the Massachusett legislature in 1893. In 1892 I attended the National Republican Convention at Minneapolis as an alternate delegate. I am a member of the Pentucket and Wachusett Clubs of this city and of several of the so-called Secret Societies."

CHARLES F. T. BEALE.

GEORGETOWN, D. C., May 17.— "I resided in Hudson, N. Y., from 1890 till 1892, when I came to Washington, D. C., where I am now practising law. Am the counsel of the trustees of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company.

"Am a member of the Society of Colonial Wars and Sons of the Revolution, in which last body am a member of the Board of Managers. Am a member of the Harvard, University and United Service Clubs, all of New York City, and of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C.

"My address for the next five years will be Metropolitan Club, Washington, D. C."

GERARD BEMENT.

April 1.— "Since 1890 I have resided in Boston, and my occupation has been as before, the practice of law. There have been no changes in my immediate family, and I have made no journeys in foreign climes; hence I have no dates to mention. I belong to the Country Club, Algonquin Club, Athletic Club, and the Essex County Club.

"My address is No. 45 Milk Street, Boston, Mass."

CHARLES HORACE BENTON.

Has not been heard from.

SHERRARD BILLINGS.

GROTON, MASS., March 28.— "For the past five years I have gone on with my work as Assistant Master at Groton School. We have introduced the Sabbatical system here which gives a man one year off in every seven. My own vacation came in '93–'94, and I made good use of it by traveling round the world with a friend, on his yacht. No more degrees have come to me. I am a member of the University Club in Boston. I have lectured several times on the subject of Travels Abroad, and am just now publishing a pamphlet on Foreign Missions. I am one of the few remaining bachelors of our class."

ROBERT ROBERTS BISHOP.

Boston, April 30.—"Since 1890 my home has been at Newton Centre, Mass., and I am still with the Boston house of L. C. Chase & Co., commission merchants, handling the mohair and woolen products of the Sanford Mills in Maine.

"The past five years have been very pleasant ones for me, and the trips made during this period, principally on business, have often taken me South and West.

"The clubs of which I am a member are the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and the Puritan Club of Boston."

HERBERT P. BISSELL.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 20.—"Since 1890 I have resided at Buffalo, N. Y., and have been occupied as a member of the law firm of Bissell, Sicard, Bissell & Carey. Another daughter was born, July 19, 1891, Lucy Agnes Bissell. In addition to my work as an attorney, I have taken some interest in politics, having been re-elected in 1891 President of the Cleveland Democracy organization of Buffalo. This organization was charged with the duty of commencing the contest against the New York State Democratic Machine in favor of the renomination of Mr. Cleveland. It was influential at the so-called 'Dandelion' Convention, the protesting convention held at Syracuse, in May, 1892. In the year of the Presidential election I was induced to become a candidate for District Attorney, and after a hard contest, which has thoroughly disgusted me with practical politics, I was defeated by a majority of 44 in a total vote of 65,000. With these exceptions, my life has been quiet and humdrum."

CHARLES BENTON BLAIR.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., April 23.— Is still practising law at Grand Rapids, Mich. Has had two children born since last report — Margaret, March 3, 1892, and John Covode, April 17, 1895 — both at Grand Rapids, Mich.

WILLIAM TILDEN BLODGETT.

Has not been heard from.

HUGH LENNOX BOND.

BALTIMORE, April 19.—"Since the date of our last report I have continued to practise law. In the summer of 1892, the receivers of the Richmond & Danville Railroad system appointed me general counsel, with office in Washington, D. C. I continued to act as general counsel under the successive receiverships until the reorganization of the system as a part of the system of the Southern Railway Company and the practical winding up of the receiverships, December 31, 1894. Since that date my office has been in the law department of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, at Baltimore. On March 1st last, I was appointed general attorney of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company. In general practice, I am one of the firm of Cowan, Cross & Bond.

"I have a third daughter, Catharine Wilder, born April 10, 1893.

"Of clubs, I am a member of the University and Harvard of New York, the Maryland and Harvard of Baltimore, and the Harvard of Washington.

"Address for the next five years, Baltimore, Md."

FRANK HERBERT BRACKETT.

Has not been heard from.

RUSSELL BRADFORD.

BOSTON, MASS., March 22.—"Since the last report I have continued to reside in Cambridge and to practise law in Boston.

"I was elected in 1892 to the Common Council, and in 1893 and 1894 to the Board of Aldermen.

"I am a member of the Colonial Club in Cambridge, of the Harvard Musical Association in Boston, and of the Essex County Club in Manchester.

"My address for the next five years, so far as I can now see, will be 209 Washington Street, Boston."

*CHARLES WESLEY BRADLEY.

Died in Somerville, Mass., September 22, 1894.

See report III., pp. 25–28, and report IV., p. 22.

AMOS FRANKLIN BREED.

BOSTON, MASS., May 2.— "I have been in the leather business since 1890, a member of the firm of Breed & Badger, Boston. In January, '93, was elected a Director of the First National Bank of Lynn, Mass., where I have resided for the past five years.

"My address will be Lynn, Mass."

CLIFFORD BRIGHAM.

BOSTON, April 20.— "Since 1890 I have had a law office at 10 Tremont Street, Boston, and also one at Salem, where I have lived. Admissions to the Bar: Massachusetts courts, 1884; U. S. Circuit Court, 1889; U. S. Supreme Court, 1892. I served in the city government of Salem, 1890–93; three of those years I was President of the Common Council, and member, ex-officio, of the School Board. I have been on various local political committees, been a Civil Service Examiner, and in 1891 and 1892 stood for the Legislature as a Democratic candidate — and fell. A list of my clubs and societies would not add interest to your columns. In 1890 I traveled abroad. I have no publications or addresses worthy of mention to report, and these items, coupled with the information that I am not married, seem to be all the news possessing any possible interest that I can contribute."

NAT MAYNARD BRIGHAM.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, March 26.— "Residence since 1890, Salt Lake City, Utah. Married, January 10, 1894, to Luella Cobb Young. Appointed United States Marshal for the Territory of Utah, May 12, 1893, for term of four years. Am also ex-officio Warden of the Utah Penitentiary.

"Am President of the First Unitarian Society of Salt Lake City, and a member of the Board of Managers of the Utah Society, Sons of the American Revolution."

LOUIS MAYO BROWN.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., March 21.— "I have no information for the Class Report. I have not changed my occupation, address or firm since 1890. Am still unmarried and have taken no journeys, held no offices and written no books.

"I expect my address to continue as above."

PHILIP T. BUCKLEY.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 29.—"I am still practising medicine at 414 Broadway, South Boston, Mass."

GEORGE MINOT BUTLER.

Has not been heard from.

FRANCIS E. CABOT.

EAST MILTON, MASS.—"I have been with the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters all the time since the last report, as inspector and electrician, and have been in charge of all the inspection work of that Board for the last three years. I have now three children, Ruth, Ethel and Margery, and am still living in Milton, Mass.

"I was active in the formation of the Underwriters' National Electric Association, which is composed of the insurance inspectors of electric hazards throughout the country, and have been chairman of the Electric Committee of that body since its formation, nearly three years ago.

"I have taken little active part in politics except in town affairs, and have written no books and only two or three articles on subjects connected directly with my work.

"My address, so far as I can tell, will remain as before: F. E. Cabot, East Milton, Mass."

FRANK OLIVER CARPENTER.

West Roxbury, Mass., May 29.—"My residence and place of business has been in Boston since 1890, as for the past twelve years.

"I am still a teacher in the English High School, Boston. My work is chiefly teaching French. As I said in the last report, I was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1887, but owing to the continuous illness in my family for the last 14 years I have not yet felt able to give up the certainty of a salaried position for the delights (?) of the first years of law practice. I hope to do so some time.

"I practise, however, in a small way in the time I have left after school work is done.

"My home has been, for the past three years, at Highland Station, West Roxbury, Mass., where I hope to remain for the future.

"I have one son, born August 29, 1890, at Dorchester, Mass. His name is Arthur Wiltse Carpenter.

"I have not wandered far from home the last five years, spending my time in Boston, except during my summer vacations.

"My summers have been spent in New Hampshire generally. I have a cottage at North Woodstock, N. H., named Ferncliff. It is in a very sightly location, and the view from the piazzas is one of the most beautiful to be found among the White Mountains, and is rapidly becoming famous. Every little while I meet some stranger who says: 'You own that cottage at North Woodstock, N. H., with that wonderful view, do you not?' until I fear that I may, by-and-by, be considered merely as the annex to the cottage.

"It would give me pleasure to welcome there any of my class-mates who may chance to be in that vicinity at any time in the summer. I built the cottage in the summer of 1890, directing and working with and over the men.

"I since have built two houses at Boston, one for myself, from my own plans and entirely under my own supervision, doing all the purchasing of material, etc., myself. I also have drawn several sets of plans for friends. I mention this as a rather strange and unpremeditated return to the idea which I held till I went to college, of studying architecture for my life work.

"I have made no journeys away from New England since 1890. In 1893 I took a driving trip about the White Mountains with my family.

"In 1894 I spent a week on the summit of Mount Washington with the Appalachian Club, and, during the week, with two others, explored and climbed out of Huntington's Ravine, which was previously considered impassable.

"I hold no office, except the humble one of Justice of the Peace, and some positions in some unimportant neighborhood clubs.

"I belong to the Appalachian N. H. Club, B. Y. M. C. Union and Theosophical Society.

"I have given various addresses on scientific, public, and theosophical questions to various clubs, and in passing I wish to record my firm belief and knowledge in the scientific and philosophical truths of Theosophy and occultism, based on eight years of careful study and investigation.

"I think this testimony is not unworthy to offer to my class-mates as part of my work and study since the last report, and declare that the so-called occult laws are demonstrable in as scientific a manner as the laws and phenomena of other branches of science.

"My address for the future, so far as I can now see, will be as follows:

"Montview Street, Highland Station, West Roxbury, Mass."

*IGNATIUS SUMNER CARRUTH.

Died in Boston, Mass., August 8, 1883.

See Report III., pp. 31-32.

HENRY BAINBRIDGE CHAPIN.

Boston, April 5.— "I have made no change in residence or occupation since 1890. I am the General Freight Agent of the Boston & Albany Railroad, and live in Boston. I have a second son, Henry B. Chapin, Jr., born November 19, 1891. In 1890 I went to Europe for a short trip, but beyond that, I have done nothing outside of my regular routine."

CHARLES HENRY CHAPMAN.

Has not been heard from. His address is lost.

GEORGE THORNDIKE CHASE.

New York, May 7.— "Since our last report in 1890 I have been practising medicine in New York. I am a member of the Harvard Club of this city and The Harvard Medical Society of New York City.

"My address is 238 W. 127th Street, New York."

WALTER COLE.

Has not been heard from.

HARVEY NEWTON COLLISON.

Boston, March 22.— "Since 1890 I have lived in Boston and continued the practice of law. I have no partner. I was admitted to my profession at Cambridge, January 22, 1883.

"I am unmarried. I have not traveled abroad, but have visited many parts of my own country.

"In March, 1892, I was appointed by Governor Russell a member of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission of Massachusetts. My service on this board ended in January, 1895. The work of this Commission was the building of about 50 miles of trunk sewers in about 20 cities and towns in the neighborhood of Boston, and was of great importance and magnitude. I have held no other public offices since 1890, but I have been somewhat interested in political affairs. I have been president of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts and an officer of the National Association of Democratic Clubs. I have made a great many public addresses on political subjects and some on sewerage systems. I am a member of the Roxbury Club and several other organizations.

"I have no title. I do not contemplate any change in my present address, 5 Tremont Street, Boston."

WILLIAM HOFF COOK.

San Francisco, March 26.—"Since the last report I have still been following my profession as an attorney-at-law in San Francisco, and am not a member of any firm. There has been another child born since my last report, a son, named Lawrence Gatewood Cook, born on the 5th day of December, 1890.

"I have made no journeys in foreign countries, nor do I hold any office by appointment or election, and have had no experience which would be of interest to the different members of the class.

"In short, I have been following my profession with moderate success, and have not been endeavoring to become prominent in politics or otherwise.

"My probable address for the next five years will be Room 20, Chronicle Building, San Francisco."

CHARLES STEVENSON DAVIS.

Plymouth, Mass., April 22.—"Since 1890 I have continued to reside in Plymouth, Mass., engaged in the practice of law, and shall, without doubt, pursue the same calling at the same place for the next five years."

JOHN DOANE.

LINCOLN, NEB., June 7.—"My life has been quite uneventful during the past five years. In the fall of 1889 I took charge of the Congregational Church in Grand Island, Neb., where I remained until the Spring of 1893. At that time I received an invitation to become pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Lincoln, Neb. Here I find a larger, more promising field, although at the same salary. Lincoln being the capital of the State and a great educational centre, is a pleasant, and, in times of prosperity, a growing city. It will be a struggle to weather the financial storm, but if we succeed a good future is before us. The church has 200 members, and a very good house of worship.

"I also preach at an out-station, eight miles south of Lincoln, in a farming community, every Sunday afternoon, driving back and forth. The church there is in a flourishing condition, having been organized in August, 1893, and already numbering 65 members, with a good house of worship, and a large constituency of young men.

"A daughter was born to us September 10, 1893, Sophie Lois Doane. Our health, as a family, was never better than during the past year. My two boys, John and Leroy, nine and seven years of age, are in the public schools, which are excellent.

"I do not anticipate any change in location for several years. My summer vacations I usually spend in Cleveland, Ohio, supplying the pulpit of the Plymouth Church during its pastor's absence."

EDWIN MERRICK DODD.

PROVIDENCE, April 9.—"I have continued living here in Providence the past five years, doing business as a member of the firm of Coffin & Dodd, wool brokers.

"On Sept. 14, '90, twin boys arrived ; these are named Eugene and Dexter Tiffany. March 24, '92, a daughter, Katharine, was born, and on January 23, '94, another daughter, whom we named Margaret Perley.

"I have held no offices and written no books.

"Of social clubs, I belong to the Hope, Athletic, and Agawan Hunt Club here.

"Address, box 991, Providence, R. I."

FRANK FADEN DODGE.

Boston, April 9.—"Have resided in Woburn since 1890, and have continued in the leather business. Became a member of the firm of Stephen Dow & Co. when that firm was reorganized in 1892.

"Think I have already written you that with my wife I passed the summer of 1890 in England and on the Continent.

"Am a member of the Boston Athletic Association, the New Manhattan Athletic Club, and the Hull Yacht Club. Served three years on the school committee of the city of Woburn.

"My address will be as above, 6 High Street, Boston."

JONATHAN DWIGHT, Jr.

New York, March 25.—Studied medicine in New York until June, 1893, and received the degree of M. D. from the Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, June 14, 1893.

ARTHUR WENTWORTH EATON.

NEW YORK, April 28.—"During the last five years I have given the greater part of my time to English work in the Cutler School in this city. When I entered the school in 1888, it was only to give special instruction in literature to the boys who were about to take their final entrance examinations. Soon the English movement that is now so actively in progress began, and I found that the whole English department in the school needed to be reorganized and made more efficient. This work of reorganization being put into my hands, and the school increasing in size, I found myself almost before I knew it launched in a profession that I had never dreamed of entering, and obliged to make a serious study of methods of teaching English in preparatory schools. The work, however, has been in every way most interesting, not the least of its satisfactions being the close contact in which one is kept through it with the constantly widening movements of the educational world, especially of the Harvard College world, and with the younger generation of students. With the exception of two series of a compilation known as 'College Requirements in English,' I have published no book since the last report. Two or three historical monographs, a few poems, and an occasional prose article for some newspaper are all I have done of published work. I have manuscripts awaiting revision, and much literary work to do, but my strength is very limited. I still often take clerical duty and have never quite given up the idea of becoming a parish priest again.

"Summer before last I was once more in Europe, and last summer I spent in Newport."

RALPH NICHOLSON ELLIS.

HERBERT HALL EUSTIS.

BOSTON, MASS., March 21.—"In reply to your inquiry as to what I have been doing for the past five years would say that the principal event of any interest is my marriage November 24, 1891, to Miss Orient Humphrey Nichols, daughter of Frederick S. and Elizabeth L. Nichols of Boston. We reside on Maple Street, Brookline, Mass.

"I still hold the position of President of the Eastern Electric Cable Company, and my address for the next five years is, as before, 61 Hampshire Street, Boston, Mass."

JAMES DEERING FESSENDEN.

New York, March 21.—"The period since 1890 has been uneventful. I have continued the practise of my profession without change of location or of partnership connection. I have good health and find life well worth living.

"Address, 7 Beekman Street, New York."

JAMES BRAINERD FIELD.

Lowell, Mass., March 21.—"I am still practising medicine in this city.

"The birth of my son, Howard Grant, on August 24, 1892, was followed by the death of his mother on September 2d. The boy died January 12, 1893. On September 28, 1893, I was married to Miss Helen Augusta Ward, daughter of William H. Ward of this city, and his wife, Augusta (Broad) Ward. Our son, Winthrop Brooks, was born December 28, 1894.

"I am still Chairman of the Lowell Board of Health and Treasurer of the Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health. I am a member of the American Public Health Association. I am Visiting Surgeon to the Lowell Hospital and to the Lowell General Hospital, and am Out-Patient Surgeon to the St. John's Hospital of Lowell. I also belong to various medical, social and religious organizations, unnecessary to mention.

"Address, 329 Westford Street, Lowell, Mass."

CHARLES EVERETT FISH.

EXETER, N. H., May 25.—Has just resigned the principalship of Phillips Exeter Academy, which he has held since 1890 — resignation to take effect June 30. Has had two children born since last report — Edith, August 5, 1893, and Helen Webster, April 15, 1895.

Address after July 1, Waban, Mass.

CHARLES CHAUNCEY FOSTER.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., May 23.—"I am, as formerly, settled here as a doctor (M. D., Harvard, 1883), at No. 8 Elmwood Avenue. I am not married. Have made no foreign journeys since 1890. Have written only a few medical papers on points in "Orthopædic Surgery." Am a member of the Puritan, Papyrus and St. Botolph clubs; also of the Massachusetts Medical Society and the National Orthopædic Association."

HAROLD NORTH FOWLER.

CLEVELAND, O., March 21.—"When I wrote my last report I was Professor of Latin in the Phillips Exeter Academy. I remained there until October, 1892, when I became Professor of Greek in the University of Texas at Austin, Texas. I spent a very pleasant college year in Texas, and was very sorry to come away. Family reasons, however, obliged me to come north and east. In May, 1893, I accepted a call to the chair of Greek in the College for Women of Western Reserve University, and entered upon my duties here in September of that year.

"I was married December 23, 1890, at Exeter, N. H., to Helen, daughter of Hon. Charles Henry Bell, and his first wife, Sarah Almira Gilman. We have no children.

"Aside from the professorships above mentioned I have held no offices except that of corresponding secretary of the Archaeological Institute of America, to which I was appointed about a year ago, and that of secretary and treasurer of the Cleveland Society of the Archaeological Institute, to which I was elected last night.

"Since the last report I have published: Quintus Curtius Rufus, Books III. and IV., edited for sight reading (Ginn & Co., Boston, 1891); Allen & Greenough's Ovid revised (Ginn & Co., 1890); A First Book in Latin, by Hiram Tuell and Harold North Fowler (Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, Boston, 1893); Eine archaische Bronze in Boston, in Bonner Studien, Aufsätze aus der Altertumswissenschaft Reinhard Kekulé zur Erinnerung an seine Lehrthätigkeit in Bonn gewidmet von Seinen Schülern (W. Spemann, Berlin, 1890); Recollections of a German Gymnasium, in Harvard Monthly, June, 1891; What Became of the Gods of Greece and Rome (an address delivered in Exeter, N. H., April 10, 1892) in Phillips Exeter Literary Monthly, April, 1892; Notes on Cicero, Cat. IV., 3, 6, and Plutarch, Qu. Gr. § 1 in Harvard Studies in Classical Philology, vol. III., 1892, p. 189 sq.; The Temple on the Acropolis burnt by the Persians, in American Journal of Archaeology, vol. VIII, 1893, p. 1 sqq.; Fastigium in Pliny, N. H. XXXV., 152, ibid. p. 381 sqq.; reviews of Stahl's Thucydides, Book II. in Classical Review, 1890, p. 249 sq., of the Catalogue of Greek Coins in the British Museum (Pontus, etc.), ibid. 1890, p. 325, sq., of Pearson's Fragments of Zeno and Cleanthes, ibid. 1891, p. 479 sqq., of Schmekel's Philosophie der Mittleren Stoa, ibid., 1892, p. 349 sqq., of Charles Diehl, Excursions in Greece to Recently Explored Sites of Classical Interest, in American Journal of Archaeology, vol. VIII., 1893, p. 249 sq., of Perrot and Chipiez, History of Art in Phrygia, Lydia, Coná and Lycia, and History of Art in Persia, ibid. p. 239 sqq., of Edward Robinson, Catalogue of Greek, Etruscan, and Roman Vases in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, ibid., vol. IX., 1894, p. 217 sq., of A. Kalkmann, die Proportionen des Gesichts in der Griechischen Kunst, ibid., p. 555 sqq.; and in addition more or less unsigned work in the last named journal of which I am 'Literary Editor.'

"I have made no addresses before public meetings, except public lectures in courses offered at the institutions in which I have been teaching, papers read before the American Philological Association, and lectures before some of the Societies of the Archaeological Institute."

"Address, Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio."

*HENRY GARDNER FRENCH.

Died in Boston, Mass., January 2, 1892. A memorial sketch should have been printed in this Report. It will be prepared and sent to the members of the class this summer, and printed in the next Class Report. The following statement is from the card which was mailed to the class soon after his death :

"HENRY GARDNER FRENCH, son of Jonas Hanod and Fanny Elizabeth (Thompson) French, was born in Boston, Mass., September 16, 1859. He was fitted for Harvard College at Mr. Hopkinson's school, in Boston, and entered in 1876. Soon after graduating he entered the Maverick Bank of Boston, and from there went into the American Loan and Trust Company of Boston, where he stayed several years. He then went to Louisiana, where he was interested in a sugar plantation, and lived for some time in New Orleans. During 1887 and 1888 he traveled in Europe, California and the Sandwich Islands, and then returned to Boston, where he engaged in the Street Railway Advertising business. He was married in 1891 to Miss Stella Evans."

EUGENE FULLER.

NEW YORK, April 26.— "My residence since 1890 has been 252 Lexington Avenue, New York City. Office address, 109 East 34th Street. I am practising medicine as announced in the former report.

"I have had two children born since last report. My first child, Dorethy Margaret, was born the 13th of October, 1891, and died the 11th of May, 1892. My second child, Duncan MacTavish, was born August 13, 1893.

"I went to London in connection with my professional work in 1891.

"I belong to a number of medical societies and probably to about the same clubs as given in last report.

"I have written considerably. Besides numerous articles to medical journals and magazines, I have written the article on 'Diagnostic Significance of Pathological Modifications in the Urine,' in Vol. I., and the article on 'Syphilis of the Genito-Urinary Organs,' Vol. II. of Morrow's 'System of Genito-Urinary Diseases, Syphilology and Dermatology;' a book entitled, 'Disorders of the Male Sexual Organs,' Lea Bros. & Co. (now in press), and in conjunction with Dr. Keyes, since 1891, the article on Genito-Urinary Surgery in Sajous' 'Annual of the Universal Medical Sciences,' published by the F. A. Davis Co. I also lecture on venereal and genito-urinary diseases in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School. My address for the next five years will, I expect, be 252 Lexington Avenue, New York City."

FREDERIC GARDINER.

POMFRET, CONN., March 26.—"Residence since June, 1889, Pomfret, Conn., as Rector of Christ Church.

"Children, Frances Vaughan, born 16th of September, 1893.

"Took A. M. at Harvard, June, 1893. I had done the work for this in 1880–1, but intended then to take Ph. D. When I thought of being satisfied with A. M., I found no record kept of my courses in '81 — graduate students were of small importance then — and I had to pass my examinations over again. It was really a very amusing sensation after being a teacher and examiner of others for many years, to sit at the old benches in Massachusetts and Seaver, and be in the 'anxious seat.'

"For three years had charge of Department of Biology in Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. Am now president of Board of Education in Pomfret.

"Member American Historical Society; Society Biblical Literature and Exegesis; American Society of Naturalists; Church Social Union; Church Association Advancement Interests of Labor. Have published nothing more than magazine and newspaper articles on scientific and educational subjects; and delivered three papers on Sociology.

"I have this year succeeded in getting Wm. E. Peck, formerly Head Master of St. Mark's, Southborough, to move here and establish a school. The school has been a pronounced success from the start, opening with 45 pupils and a long waiting list. Next year it will be enlarged to 65. I have charge of the mathematics and science. I hope to be able to carry out practically some of the many educational ideas that seethe within but have no outlet.

"Address Rev. Frederic Gardiner, Pomfret, Conn."

WILLIAM ALEXANDER GASTON.

Boston, May 25.—"I am sorry to say that my life for the past five years has been so uninteresting that I ought not to bother our classmates with an answer to your many questions. Still to satisfy you, let me tell you that my residence since 1890 has been Boston, and my occupation a lawyer. The firm of which I am a member is called Gaston & Snow. I was married on April 9, 1892, to May D. Lockwood, daughter of Hamilton De Forest and Annie L. Lockwood. An infant son was born to us on August 31, 1893, who died shortly afterwards. A daughter, Ruth Gaston, was born on November 9, 1894.

"I spent the summer of 1892 in England, and I made a trip in France in the spring of 1895. I have held no political offices and have not been guilty of writing books, pamphlets or magazine articles. The offices I have held and the clubs I have joined are of no possible interest to the class.

"Please address me hereafter at 8 Congress Street, Boston."

JAMES GEDDES, Jr.

Boston, March 31.—"I have continued to exercise the profession of a pedagogue at Boston University, being made Professor in '92, and making something of a specialty of Romance philology, in which subject I received a doctor's degree at Harvard in '94.

"I have spent a couple of summers among the Acadians about the Bay of Chaleur, engaged mostly in dialect research, but endeavoring to combine recreation as well, and traversing the country from Metapedia to Gaspe, stopping more or less time in the French settlements along the bay; also one summer in the somewhat isolated Acadian settlement of Cheticamp, in the northwest corner of Cape Breton Island. To the blasé tourist, wearied of the splendor and luxury so universal in the effete monarchies of Europe, and longing to get back to nature, I can conscientiously recommend these primitive regions, where quite as much simplicity exists as in Normandy, and where the hotel and steam cars are out of sight and mind.

"The results of my observations are appearing in the Modern Language Notes, the first of a series of papers having appeared in December '93 and in the January and February numbers for '94.

"I am a member of several organizations interested in phonetics and study of language. I have addressed the Modern Language Conference and the Cercle Français of Harvard on language topics, and at the philological Congress of the World's Fair, at the American Dialect Society's meeting, I read a paper on An Acadian Dialect spoken about the Baie des Chaleurs.

"Last summer I had charge of the French department at the Martha's Vineyard Summer Institute.

"I was married June 27, 1894, in Newton Centre, to Mathilde Hugèl, daughter of Charles and Caroline (Jundt) Hugèl, of Brumath, Alsace.

"My home address is Newton Lower Falls, Mass."

JOSEPH HENRY GEST.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—"Since 1890 my residence has continued in Cincinnati, still occupied in the administration of the Cincinnati Museum Association, of which I have been Assistant Director since 1891.

"Frederick Schultze Gest, our second child, was born on the 16th of September, 1890.

"Read a short sketch of a Philosophy of Art before the Unity Club, in the winter of 1891. Address before the Commercial Club of Cincinnati on Cincinnati's Art Industries, February 17, 1894. Article in the Engineering Magazine, July, 1893, on the 'Sculptors of the World's Fair.' Collaborated in preparing a series of magazine and newspaper articles on the World's Fair, 1893. Various other articles for the press. Member of the Ohio State Jury on Fine Arts, World's Fair. Juror on Ceramics, Paintings, etc., in connection with an exhibit made by Cincinnati women at the World's Fair. Member of the Cincinnati Art Club. Corresponding Secretary of the American Art Association, Paris. Trustee and secretary of the Municipal Art Society of Cincinnati.

"Address J. H. Gest, Assistant Director, Cincinnati Museum Association, Cincinnati."

*SAMUEL COTTON GILBERT.

Died in Deming, New Mexico, April 3, 1885.

See Report III., pp. 45–47, and Report IV., p. 37.

FRANK MILTON GILLEY.

CHELSEA, MASS., April 25.— "I have nothing to report except a trip to London and Paris in the summer of '93.

"Address, 100 Clark Avenue, Chelsea, Mass."

BRADLEY GILMAN.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., March 22.— "In the summer of '90 I went abroad, visiting, among other 'sights' (why not also 'sounds?'), the Passion Play at Oberammergau. On my return I put my reflections into a lecture which I gave, with stereopticon, before all the crowned heads of New Hampshire. Since then my fortunes have declined, and I will condescend to give the same lecture, for $200 and expenses, before any audience, however plebeian.

"More seriously, I was in Concord, New Hampshire, at the date of writing the last class report. In '92, May, I came to Springfield, Massachusetts, and am at present the minister over the Third Congregational Church of this city, the 'Church of the Unity.'

"I have one child, Dorothy Foster, born in '91.

"In '92, Crowell & Co., Publishers, brought out a book of mine, written for children of ten or twelve, called 'The Musical Journey of Dorothy and Delia.'

"Last year I was appointed a visitor to the Harvard Divinity School, and that appointment was continued this year.

"That is the brief abstract of my five years since the last report. If you had not so limited us to the past tense, in your list of inquiries, both as to our journeys and publications, if we might have been allowed to tell of 'potential' journeys and books yet unknown, then I could fill several more pages.

"Moreover, as to that last question, 'your address for the next five years,' the experience of my profession teaches me that prophecies of such matters are vain, both for this world and the next."

WILLIAM WALLACE GOOCH.

LOUIS MAY GREELEY.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 6.—"I am still a bachelor and a lawyer. I still live at 60 Bellevue Place and see no reason why I shouldn't continue to reside there for some time to come. I have held no offices and written no books or magazine articles, except perhaps one or two for Law Magazines. I have joined the University Club of this city since my last report. My office is Room 902, 100 Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois."

Died at Colorado Springs, Col., March 21, 1888.

See Report IV., pp. 40–42.

ARTHUR HALE.

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.—"I have continued with the Pennsylvania Railroad since 1890. In 1893, I was made Special Agent of the Transportation Department in charge of loading, routing and the movement of freight. Most of my work is in connection with fast freight, and when you eat early strawberries and shell oysters at Buffalo you may think of me watching over them as they traveled.

"In February, 1894, I went to Havana, Cuba, where I spent two days, went to four fancy balls, and played two games of chess.

"I am a member of (and on the Committee of Admissions of) the University Club of Philadelphia, of the Sons of the Revolution, the Franklin Chess Club, (and President of) the Junior Chess Club, the Pegasus Club, the Pennsylvania Historical Society, the New England Society of Philadelphia and a director of the Seventh Ward Association (Associated Charities).

"I have contributed to the Railroad Gazette and the Boston Commonwealth.

"Address, 1711 Pine Street, Philadelphia, Pa."

FREDERIC BOUND HALL.

ROXBURY, MASS., March 30.—"Have left the Berkeley School, where I have been for nearly eight years, and am teaching drawing in the English High School. Have joined the Thayer Association of Chauncey-Hall, made up of older graduates of Chauncey-Hall School."

Address, 57 High Street, Charlestown, Mass.

WILLIAM DUDLEY HALL.

BOSTON, March 22.—"Since 1890 my residence has been Winchester, Mass., but have been occupied in the practice of medicine, as an oculist, at 387 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass. I began the practice of medicine in 1883. I have not yet married, and have made no journeys in foreign countries. Since 1891 have been assistant ophthalmic surgeon to the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary of Boston,

Mass., and in 1893 was appointed pathologist of that institution. At the time of my appointment to the Infirmary I resigned the position of oculist to the Boston Dispensary and the St. Elizabeth's Hospital. I am a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the New England Ophthalmological Society, of which I am secretary, the Society for Medical Improvement, the Boston Society of Medical Science, the University Club of Boston, the Calumet Club of Winchester and the Boston Press Club. I have written nothing for publication and have made no public addresses, and have done nothing so unusual as to be of interest.

"My address will be 387 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts."

ALBERT BUSHNELL HART.

CAMBRIDGE, April 4.— "Since 1890 I have been still assistant professor of history in Alma Mater, having been re-appointed for five years from September 1, 1892. I live in the old-fashioned house, 15 Appian Way, where Prof. James lived when we were in college.

"Two years ago, on August 2, 1893, my wife and I sailed from New York by the steamer 'Friesland' for Antwerp for the enjoyment of a sabbatical year. We spent the remainder of the summer at Zermatt, and in the beautiful Dolomites of the eastern Tyrol. The winter was passed in Italy. I visited several of the Italian universities; and during part of January and February was in Greece.

The spring was very delightfully spent at Montpellier, a city of 80,000 people, in which only three could speak English ; and in exploring the remarkable and little visited gorges of the neighboring Cévennes. Most of the summer of 1894 was spent in Switzerland, where I had some opportunity to study the working of the Swiss federal government on the spot. Several signed letters on countries and places visited during the year appeared in the Nation from November, 1893, to September, 1894. We returned on the 'Friesland' from Antwerp, arriving in New York September 2, 1894.

"The only public office that I have held is membership in the Cambridge School Committee from October, 1891, to August, 1893, and again since November, 1894. I am a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society ; Twentieth Century Club, of Boston ; Reform Club, of New York ; Massachusetts Military Historical Society ; Massachusetts Schoolmasters' Club ; Wisconsin State Historical Society (corresponding) ; and of various other professional and educational societies.

"Since the last report various long-cherished plans of publication have come to fruition. The following is a partial list :

"Introduction to the Study of Federal Government. Harvard Historical Monographs No. 2. Boston : Ginn & Co. 1891.

"Epoch Maps, Illustrating American History. New York : Longmans, Green & Co. 1891.

"Formation of the Union, 1750–1829. New York and London : Longmans, Green & Co. (Epochs of American History, Volume II.) 1892.

"Practical Essays on American Government. New York : Longmans, Green & Co. 1893.

"Studies in American Education. New York : Longmans, Green & Co. 1895.

"There have also been three or four pamphlets prepared for the use of students in college classes in history, government and oral debate.

"Connection with the School Committee has led to interest in school matters, especially in the movement to improve grammar school instruction. I have taken part in the preparation of several reports of committees on such subjects, of which the principal ones are :

"Report on Grammar School Instruction ; made by a Special Committee to the School Committee of the city of Cambridge, June 2, 1892.

"History, Civil Government and Political Economy (Report of the Madison Conference of December 28–30, 1892). In the Report of the Committee of Ten on Secondary Studies. Washington Bureau of Education, 1893.

"Among various editorial tasks may be mentioned the Epochs of American History ; the three volumes (including the Formation of the Union), appeared from 1891 to 1893. Prof. Channing and I have, since 1892, been editing a series of American History Leaflets, of which 21 numbers have now appeared. I have also edited monographs by two advanced students ; E. C. Mason's Veto Power ; and Marion G. McDougall's Fugitive Slaves. Since December, 1894, I have been University Editor of the Harvard Graduates' Magazine ; and since April, 1895, one of the board of editors of The American Historical Review. The principal contributions to periodicals have been gathered in the Practical Essays, and Studies in American Education, mentioned above.

"The only 'circumstance or experience' which seems to be unusual is a thorough acquaintance with Cape Cod, gained during the last five years. It is a quaint remnant of American America — as interesting and out of the way as Holland.

"Will not the members of 1880 remember that the 'resident partner' of the class in Cambridge will be delighted to see every one of them as often as they revisit the classic shades ?

"Address, Albert Bushnell Hart, Assistant Professor of History, 15 Appian Way, Cambridge, Mass."

GEORGE BAPTISTE HATCH.

BERKELEY, CAL., May 28.— "I remained in Lynn, Massachusetts, as pastor of the North Congregational Church, until February 19, 1893. Accepting an invitation from the First Congregational Church in Berkeley, California, to become its pastor, I left Lynn and came to Berkeley, where I now reside. Berkeley is across the bay from San Francisco, looks out through the Golden Gate, and is the home of the State University, which, at this writing, is being 'advertised by its loving friends,' namely, its excellent athletic team, in the inter-collegiate games. My work brings me closely into touch with many of the faculty and students of the University, a fact which I appreciate highly. The institution is a fine one, second in my affections only to our own Harvard.

"Since the last report, we have had one child born, April 12, 1891, a girl, Marguerite Fanning.

"As respects the other topics suggested for treatment, I can only say that I have done nothing that can be recorded. I have made any number of addresses, some of which have been printed, and have held and am holding several minor offices connected with various organizations, but in a work like mine there is seldom anything that seems worthy of particular mention. I believe my life is a useful one, and I know it is a happy one.

"I anticipate remaining in Berkeley for the next five years."

EDWARD SOUTHWORTH HAWES.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 31.—"I am still, as I expect to remain, a teacher. The year '90-'91 I passed in Boston, where I taught small Latin and less Greek in a private school for girls. The next year I taught the same subjects in the Norwich Free Academy — a fine school, by the way, in Norwich, Conn.; Dr. Robert Porter Keep is the Principal. For the last three years I have been in charge of the Latin and Greek in the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, Academic Department, a large secondary school of over 600 boys.

"I have not been out of the country during the last five years, nor held public office. I have joined the Harvard Club of New York and the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn, and am a member of the American Philological Association.

"The only political activity I have manifested was during the last important municipal election in Brooklyn, in 1893, when I bore a humble part in helping to smash the ring. I feel a deep interest in political matters,— what educated man can fail to do so, if he is wide awake, and not a stick-in-the-mud?— but most of us do not know how to take hold. 'Wherever you see a corrupt ring, try to smash it,' is a fine motto, but the trouble is that when we have tried to act on it for two or three years we have put ourselves out of the pale of both parties. But the number of men who think and who will have reform is growing all over the country, and they are continually exerting more influence. Meantime some readjustment of national parties is inevitable.

"Literary activity is rather a portentous heading. My efforts in this direction have been limited to two or three lectures before the Classical Section of the Brooklyn Institute, and a course in Homer conducted there last winter. I also read a paper before the Connecticut High School Teachers' Association in February, 1892, which was printed in the Academy for that year, under the following portentous title: 'The Place of Work Preparatory for College in Relation to Other Work in Secondary Schools.' At present I am engaged with Professor Frank P. Graves, of Tufts College, in preparing a First Book in Greek, which, of course, is destined to revolutionize elementary instruction in that study.

"My address remains, Polytechnic Institute, 99 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Has not been heard from. Is still living in Buffalo and is a frequent contributor of short stories to nearly all the leading magazines. Some volumes of his stories have been published.

WILLIAM H. HILLS.

BOSTON, May 22.—"I am still exchange editor and editorial paragraph writer on the Boston Globe, editor of The Writer, and manager of The Writer Publishing Company, and editor of the Somerville Journal. I bought an interest in the Journal in the fall of 1890, and have since been the president of the Somerville Journal Company. I joined John Abbot Lodge, A. F. A. M., in the fall of 1892. My third daughter, Dorothy Thayer, was born January 22, 1894.

"Address 282 Washington Street, Boston, Mass."

FLETCHER STEPHEN HINES.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., March 22.—"I have not changed my residence nor occupation since the publication of the last class report.

"I have made no journeys, published no books, made no public addresses, married no wives, gained no titles, had no experiences of interest to the class.

"My little boy, Dauphine, died October 25, 1892, leaving me with only one child. My permanent address is Indianapolis, Ind."

CHARLES AUSTIN HOBBS.

WATERTOWN, MASS., April 20.—"I am still at the Belmont School, where I rank as assistant head master, and am still teaching mathematics and physics. During the fall term of 1891 I was instructor in mathematics at Phillips Exeter Academy, but the inducements offered me to come back to Belmont were so great that I returned after the Christmas vacation.

"In the summer of 1892 I made a three months' trip to Europe, visiting England, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and France."

Address, Watertown, Mass.

WILLIAM HOOPER.

Boston, April 7.—"Since 1890 I have lived at 276 Beacon Street, Boston. Resigned as treasurer of the Atlantic Cotton Mills in the spring of 1892. In the autumn of 1893 assumed the position of auditor with the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, which I still hold.

"On April 17, 1895, I shall be married to Alice Forbes Perkins, daughter of Charles Elliott and Edith Forbes Perkins of Burlington, Iowa.

"In May–September, 1892, went to England and the Continent, going to the North Cape.

"In the spring of 1893 went to West Indies.

"Have been, and still am, a member of the Committee on the Regulation of Athletic Sports at Harvard University.

ARTHUR HURST.

New York, May 31.—"I am happy to be able to report progress, not only in years, but in material prosperity as well. Since my last contribution to our class history I have put my neck into the matrimonial noose, and have been delighted to find how lightly and pleasantly it draws. On April 27, 1892, I married Theophila Marsh, youngest daughter of John W. Marsh and Ellen B. Marsh (née Baker) of Kidderminster, England. In the approved language of the story books, our union has been blessed with issue, — a daughter, now past two years of age, having been born February 16, 1893. Her lawful, christian name is Theophila — Theo 'for short' — but I have several unlawful and unchristian names for her, to anyone of which the baby answers with equal facility. She is certain her father is the grandest man on earth, especially when he attempts to stand on his head or risks his life in performing other perilous gymnastic evolutions for her amusement. From this it will be seen that my domestic responsibilities have brought with them increased dignity of deportment. As for all the rest I may state briefly that I am in sound health, happy, contented, and prospering in business. I still continue the practice of law at No. 132 Nassau Street, New York City. All my literary efforts have been confined to the composition of numerous legal documents and briefs which for elegance of style, soundness of logical reasoning and display of legal acumen and learning have rarely been equalled and never surpassed — in my own modest judgment. I am still a member of the Oxford Club of Brooklyn, Marine and Field Club of Bath Beach, N. Y., American Canoe Association, Brooklyn Bar Association and of various other organizations of minor importance.

"My residence is at 385 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"In conclusion, I wish to enter a mild protest and 'kick' against the decadence of athletics at Harvard. Oh, for a return of the grand victories of '77, '78, '79, and '80!"

HENRY JACKSON.

Boston, April 21.—"Since 1890 I have continued the practise of medicine in Boston.

"My son, Henry Jackson, Jr., was born October 22, 1892.

"During the winter of 1893–4 I was not well, so that I was obliged to give up my work, and I went to Europe with my wife, March 17th. We went to Genoa by steamer, passed two months in Italy, and later took a most interesting trip down the Loire, visiting the charming chateaux of old Lorraine. We returned in August.

"January 8th, I was operated upon for recurrent appendicitis, and have since then been free from pain, and have recovered my health. February 20th, I went to Bermuda for six weeks, and April 1st, took up my work again.

"I have occasionally published medical articles in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

"In May, 1891, I was elected physician to out patients in the Boston City Hospital, and since that time have held the position.

"I hold the position of assistant in Clinical Medicine in the Harvard Medical School.

"Address, 309 Marlborough Street, Boston."

LAURENCE HENRY HITCH JOHNSON.

Boston, April 23.— "The last five years have been with me quite as uneventful as were the preceding five. No journeys, no offices, no publications, but only a steady grind in the practice of law. More care, less hair, some added wisdom from experience, perhaps not quite such a vivid recollection of the old college days, these are what tell the story of five years more gone.

"This last winter I have been living at No. 24 Marlborough Street, Boston, with four or five other Harvard men, where we keep bachelor's hall, and imagine we are quite as happy as those who send in 'maiden name of wife, her parents' names in full, names of children, etc.' "

HENRY CHAMPION JONES.

Boston, April 16.— "I am Junior Master in the Public Latin School of Boston, and live in Boston. I am a member of the St. Botolph and University Clubs, and the New England Free Trade League.

"My address is Boston Latin School, Warren Avenue, Boston."

FREDERICK DOLBIER JORDAN.

The class report published in 1880 stated that Jordan had not been heard from since graduation, and that his address had been lost for seven years. Soon after a classmate supplied the address, and in October, 1890, Jordan wrote as follows from Roanoke, Ind.: "In the last eight years I have taught school in six different States, Massachusetts, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, and Oregon, and since graduation I have also spent a winter in Maine and six months in Oregon." In September, 1892, he wrote from Shelbyville, Illinois, where he was Superintendent of Public Schools, but since then he has not been heard from.

FRANCIS B. KEENE.

MILWAUKEE, May 22.—"Since May, 1890, my life has been varied and eventful, I was then writing for the Milwaukee Sentinel, and was also business manager of the Conservatory of Music."

In June, 1890, went to Europe, including in his trip the Oberammergau Passion Play, and returning in August. Took an active part in an effort to establish a permanent orchestra in Milwaukee, but after one season the attempt had to be abandoned. In November, 1891, went again to Europe, visiting Denmark and Sweden, spending two months in Egypt, which he reached by the Mediterranean route, two months or more in Italy, ten days in Bayreuth for the Wagner Operas, and a little time in Belgium and Holland, and returning to this country in October, 1892.

His father's death occurred soon after and he gave the homestead to the Diocese of Milwaukee, to be known as the David Keene Hospital. Was married in Louisville, Ky., November 8, 1893, to Miss Emerin Price Semple of that city, daughter of Alexander Bonner Semple and Emerin Price Semple, and a few weeks later sailed with his wife for Genoa.

"After a fortnight at Nice, Cannes and Monte Carlo we sailed from Genoa to Egypt where we passed the next three months, going up the Nile as far as the second cataract. Returned to America in April, 1894. A daughter, Emerin Semple Keene, was born in Milwaukee, August 27, 1894.

"I still call myself a newspaper man, though I write or not as I choose. Often I have been urged to republish my letters in book form, but have not seen fit to do so. They were purposely written in a light vein, for newspaper readers. The pill of description was sugared with incident and anecdote. They were successful because I saw interesting people and things and know how to write for newspaper readers. Why should I float my craft on the torrent of ephemeral literature? I have written occasional articles on special subjects that do not need mention. I have read papers on Egypt before the Women's Club and the Current Topic Club. I am a member of the Milwaukee Club, the University Club of Chicago, the Milwaukee Press Club, the Milwaukee Country Club, the Allotria Club and the Golf Club. During the past two years I have taken an active part in the municipal reform movement here and have twice been chosen chairman of the committee on special inquiry in the Municipal League. We have worked hard to carry through the legislature a Pure Politics Act, a Civil Service bill and a bill providing for a second chamber of councillors to be elected from the city at large, as an offset to undue ward influences. The Civil Service bill we carried, but the politicians defeated the others.

"I am secretary of the Immigration Restriction League of Milwaukee. I have recently been elected a trustee of Milwaukee (Female) College. I am a delegate from the Municipal League of Milwaukee to the Third National Conference for Good City Government, to be held at Cleveland, May 29, 30, 31.

"My address is 116 Prospect Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis."

GEORGE REED KELLY.

Boston, March 22.—"I have lived in Boston since the above date and have been in my present business of importing and jobbing window glass at the above address. I was admitted to the firm of Wise, Rowan & Co. (window glass importers) in December, 1885. In January, 1887, Mr. Wise retired and Mr. Rowan and myself continued the business under the firm name of Rowan & Kelly until December, 1889. At that time Mr. Rowan retired and I took the business and have continued it without a partner, under the style of George R. Kelly & Co.

"I am a member of the University Club of Boston and the Essex County Club of Manchester, Mass."

Address, 79 Portland Street, Boston, Mass.

PERCY KENT.

New York, May 23.—"I have nothing of interest to report. I have been during the last five years, and am still, engaged in the business of importing grain bags. My address is now, and will be for the next five years, 27–29 Pearl Street, New York City."

HENRY WHITMAN KILBURN.

Boston, March 26.—"As I did not send you an account of myself for the last report, I will begin at a period somewhat farther back than 1890.

"In June, 1884, I received the degree of M. D. from Harvard University, and was admitted as a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. In July, the same year, I went to Germany to study the eye. In October, I matriculated at the University in Berlin, and entered my name for several eye courses. In the latter part of December, however, I received notice of my appointment as Interne at the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary at Boston. (I had taken the examination for the position before sailing for Europe.) I sailed for home on January 3, 1885, and held the position of Interne at the Infirmary until April 5, 1887.

"On leaving the Infirmary, I was appointed Ophthalmic Surgeon to the Lowell Hospital, at Lowell, Mass. On September 1, 1887, I began to practice the eye at No. 130 Marlborough Street, Boston, but went to Lowell two days in the week, to hold a clinic at the Lowell Hospital.

"In January, 1888, I was elected a member of the New England Ophthalmological Society, and was also appointed Assistant Ophthalmic Surgeon to the Boston City Hospital.

"On April 1, 1889, I resigned my position at the Lowell Hospital, as my Boston City Hospital work and my private practice demanded too much of my time to permit of my going to Lowell twice a week.

"On April 24, 1889, I was married to Harriet Mason Plumer, of Boston, daughter of the late Hon. Avery Plumer. The maiden name of my wife's mother was Caroline Merriam Metcalf.

"In May, 1890, I removed to 192 Marlborough Street. During the following summer I undertook altogether too much medical work of various kinds, and, being already run down from the after effects of an attack of the "Grippe," the result was a serious breakdown in health, which compelled me to take a long rest. My wife and I sailed for Europe on October 4th, and spent the winter in Italy, staying most of the time in Florence, but visiting also Pisa, Lucca, Prato, Siena, Perugia, Rome, Naples, and Sorrento.

"In March, 1891, we went North, visiting Vienna, Dresden, Cologne, and Brussels, on the Continent, and then over to England, remaining some time in London, but making several excursions, of a day or so, to Cathedral towns. We sailed for home April 2, 1891.

"As I was not considered strong enough, on my return, to resume hospital work for some time, I resigned my position at the Boston City Hospital, thus limiting my work to private practise.

"In September, 1893, my health being fully restored, I was appointed Assistant Ophthalmic Surgeon to the Carney Hospital, which position I now hold. I am Instructor in Ophthalmology in the Boston Polyclinic, and give clinical courses at the Carney Hospital.

"I am a member of the Harvard Medical Association, and of the University Club of Boston.

"Address, 192 Marlborough Street, Boston, Mass."

JOHN LAMSON LAMSON.

April 25.— "My residence has been in New York since 1890.

"I was Secretary of the New York Security & Trust Co. until May 2, 1894, when I was elected Second Vice-President, which position I now hold.

"I have two children, Eleanor and John, aged respectively three and one half and two years.

"My address for the next five years, I trust, will be 46 Wall Street, New York."

ARTHUR HENRY LEA.

PHILADELPHIA, March 22. — "My residence and occupation since 1890 have not changed. I was admitted a member of this firm (Lea Brothers & Co.) on January 1, 1885.

"My principal occupation outside of my business has been in connection with endeavours to improve the administration of municipal business in this city. The only authorship I can claim is sundry pamphlets, letters, etc., pertaining to public affairs in this city.

"I expect my address to be unchanged."

NEWARK, N. J., April 29.— "Since the last class report I have resided at Chatham, N. J., and have been in the real estate and insurance business by myself in Newark, N. J.

"A second son, Kenneth, was born January 16, 1891, and died October 30, 1891. My wife, Georgiana B., died June 29, 1892.

"I was married the second time on February 14, 1895, to Miss Katharine Heath Woodruff, of Newark, N. J.

"No public offices have been thrust upon me with the honors thereof, but I have had my share of local social and church work.

"My name and address are the same as in last report."

*CHARLES DUDLEY MARCH.

Died in Paris, France, December 24, 1887.

GEORGE W. MERRILL.

BOSTON, April 29.— "There is no change since the last Report."

GEORGE PASSAROW MESSERVY.

SALEM, MASS., June 10.—"I received the notice of the Class Report on my return from Europe, to-day, where I have been for the past four months. Traveling as far East as Cairo, the Holy Land and Constantinople.

"I retired from business last August, having reached a point in the accumulation of property that satisfied me; and do not again expect to engage in practical affairs."

ANDREW MILLER.

NEW YORK, April 22.— "Residence since 1890, New York City. Business same as before — Mitchell & Miller, Publishers "Life."

Children :—Le Roy Miller, born Nov. 9, 1888 ; George Warren Miller, born April 23, 1891. No particular incidents, no travels and no deaths.

" Address, 19 West 31st Street, New York City."

ARTHUR WENDELL MOORS.

" With the exception of a short trip to Europe in the spring of 1893 and a shorter one to the World's Fair in the following autumn, I have lived in Boston for the past five years, and have been engaged steadily in the foreign banking business in the firm of J. B. Moors & Co."

CHARLES MORGAN.

SANFORD MORISON.

Memphis, March 23.—" I continued in the employ of the Kansas City & Memphis Railway & Bridge Co. till after the opening of Memphis Bridge, and in June, 1892, accepted a position in the auditing department of the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham Railroad Company, where I am still employed.

" November 19, 1891, I married Ora, daughter of Dr. T. A. and Mary L. Currie of Memphis. A daughter, Mary, was born July 27, 1893.

" Address in care Auditor K. C. M. & B. R. R. Co., Memphis, Tenn."

CHARLES HENRY MORSS.

Milton, Mass., March 27.—" The only change since the last report that I have to record is one of residence, from Portsmouth, N. H., to Milton, Mass., which was effected in January, 1892.

" Our third son, Edward Longworth, was born April 27, 1893, at Milton."

DAVID MOULD.

Sioux City, Ia., April 20.—"Since the publication of the last Class Report in 1890, I have continued practising law as a member of the firm of Marks & Mould. My professional life has been rather monotonous, and a lengthy account of it would be more so.

"For four years I have served on the board of trustees of the Sioux City Public Library, having been once reappointed, and still occupy the position. During the last year, I was a member of the Executive Committee of ten members of the Citizens' and Tax Payers' Association of Sioux City, an organization of about 300 members, formed for the purpose of securing better government in municipal and county affairs. As a representative of that association, I attended the National Conference of Municipal Leagues, held at Minneapolis during the last winter.

"Since writing for the last report, my family has been increased by the birth of two sons, Thomas Mould, born May 9, 1890, and David Decker Mould, born October 26, 1891.

"During the last five years, I have been connected with local literary societies, but my work in that line is of such a nature that it is not of general interest.

"Being far removed from our Alma Mater, and from all my class-mates, I appreciate the value of the Harvard Graduates' Magazine and the information it contains concerning our class-mates."

AUSTIN KENT MUZZEY.

THOMAS WHITE NICKERSON.

Paterson, N. J., April 9.—"Paterson, New Jersey. Rector of St. Paul's Church, a position I have held since June, 1887.

"In 1892, a delightful summer wander in England and Scotland, leisurely and refreshing to mind and body.

"Have held no offices except two connected with church work; elected member of the Board of Missions of the Diocese of Newark; trustee of St. Katharine's Home, Jersey City.

"Have accepted the rectorship of the Church of the Messiah, Boston, Mass., and shall take up work in Boston in September, 1895.

"Address (Rev.) Thomas White Nickerson, Jr., Church of the Messiah, Boston, Mass.

CHARLES PHELPS NORTON.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 22. — "My residence is No. 88 Edward Street, Buffalo, N. Y.; my occupation that of a lawyer. I am practising alone. I am unmarried, and my address for the next five years will be Buffalo, N. Y."

JOHN ALOYSIUS O'KEEFE.

LYNN, MASS., March 23. — "Since the last report I have continued to live in Lynn.

"In 1891 an acrimonious religious agitation, complicated by some question or other 'of discipline in the school battalion' defeated my re-election to the principalship of the Lynn High School, after a period of ten years' service.

"Shortly afterwards, I was elected Head Master of the High School at Waterbury, Conn., a place offering about the same salary. But I have always planned to study law, and the opportunity seemed providential. I declined the Waterbury election, and entered the office of Joseph F. Hannan, a leading attorney of this city, and in June, 1892, I passed the examination for the Essex Bar, at Salem. Since then I have practised law in this city.

"In the fall of 1891, I received a nomination for the mayoralty of Lynn, and after a week's canvass, with a field of five candidates, polled about 20 per cent. of the vote cast. Again, last Fall, the Democratic party nominated me for the State Legislature, and I was, of course, defeated a second time.

"During the winter of 1892, '93 and '94, I was a Master in the Boston Evening High School.

"I am, or have been, a member of the following clubs and societies: Massachusetts School-Masters Club, The New England Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools, Essex Institute, Lynn Clover Club, and Knights of Columbus.

"My address for the next five years will be Lynn, Mass."

LEONARD ECKSTEIN OPDYCKE.

NICE, April 3.— "I made a short professional visit to Europe in the summer of 1891, and continued practising law in New York until the spring of 1892. The following June I came to Europe again and have since then remained abroad with the exception of three months in 1893. During this absence from home, besides visiting Spain, Greece and Constantinople, I have spent one winter in Algeria, a second in the South of France, Italy and Sicily, and a third at Nice.

"I was married at New York, October 12, 1893, to Edith, younger daughter of Edward R. and Caroline (Farnum) Bell. We have a son, Leonard, born at Nice, January 5, 1895.

"In the autumn of 1894 was published "Tales from the Aegean," a translation that I made from the French version of some modern Greek stories by Demétrios Bikélas.

"At this writing (April) I am about to return home with my family.

*WILLIAM GEORGE PELLEW.

William George Pellew, elder son of Henry Edward and Eliza (Jay) Pellew was born at Cowes, in the Isle of Wight, June 18, 1859. His paternal grandfather was Dean of Norwich, England, and his great-grandfather, Edward Pellew, Viscount Exmouth, was one of the most illustrious British naval heroes. Another great grandfather, Henry Addington, was Speaker of the House of Commons, Prime Minister, and received the title of Viscount Sidmouth.

His American pedigree, on the mother's side, was not less notable. A great-grandson of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States, he was connected with many of our eminent colonial families. In his veins ran excellent English, French and Dutch blood, and his character united some of the best traits peculiar to these races.

His first school was a small one at Cleveden, Somersetshire, kept by the Rev. Walter Cornish. His mother died while he was yet a young boy, and on the removal of his family to the United States, in 1873, he entered the third form at St. Paul's School, Concord. The prizes that he won here and the remembrance of his schoolmates testify to his diligence in school work.

Besides the friends who loved him, many others of the class will surely recall with pleasure their first impression of the bright face, the gentle manners and the sweet disposition that made Pellew so attractive to all who knew him as a Freshman. Coming to Cambridge with an admirable fit and a singularly keen intellectual curiosity, he found it easy to wander in the pleasant bypaths of self-directed study and reading, and yet at the same time to maintain a high college rank. It may well be doubted if any other member of the class found leisure to read so much or so widely as he, outside the examination subjects. Academic honors were not lacking to him; but of these our secretary's first report contains ample record. As an editor of the Advocate he contributed to its pages many verses of rare merit ; he was class odist and wrote the annual Pudding poem of 1880. At commencement he received his degree magna cum laude.

Although his three years at the Law School were rich in serious legal work, and his briefs in the Ames Pleading Club were monuments of laborious research and acute argument, he was never able to limit his interests to any one subject, however broad, and while earning his "honor" law degree, he continued constantly to enlarge the range of his general culture. In 1883 he received a Bowdoin prize for his essay, "A Critical Estimate of Miss Austen's Novels," which was afterwards published with a dedication to his friend and former instructor, Thomas Sergeant Perry, by "A Student of" the latter's English Literature in the 18th century.

During the years that followed his graduation from the Law School and speedy admission to the Suffolk Bar, he went on with the study and practise of law in and near Boston, and in New York, where also he entered the bar ; but his chief labors were literary rather than professional. A catalogue of his fugitive writings would be long. At different times he wrote regularly for the Boston Transcript, The Critic, and the New York Sun. Treating an astonishing variety of subjects, he escaped falling into the journalistic habit of mere "copy" making. What he wrote was always worth reading, and when read often became a permanent addition to the reader's store of thought and knowledge.

Early in 1888 was published his "Woman and the Commonwealth; or a Question of Expediency," a temperate, scholarly and persuasive statement of the case in favor of woman suffrage. This was followed in June of the same year by his "Castle and Cabin; or Talks in Ireland in 1887,"— the fruit of an exhaustive tour through Ireland, in the course of which he had exceptional access to the fountains of opinion in that country, and conversed with all sorts and conditions of men. The book is esteemed as one of the most valuable recent contributions to the much vexed Irish question, and received the signal honor of review by John Morley in the Nineteenth Century for February, 1889.

In 1890 there appeared, in the American Statesmen Series, his "Life of John Jay,"—a model of luminous characterization and condensed narrative.

"Besides these books," says Mr. Howells in the short sketch with which he introduced to the general public a posthumous volume of our classmate's best verse, "Pellew was the author of an unpublished work on metaphysics, which, so far as I could judge from some chapters relating to literature, was full of important and original thinking, and which I hope may yet see the light. He could not deal otherwise than importantly with anything that he touched, and his poems are in uncommon measure the expression of contemplative emotion."

The last winter of his life he was afflicted by a painful affection of the eyes, which impaired his sight and probably led to the mis-step and fall that caused his death. He died in New York, February 18, 1892.

No college friend appreciated Pellew more justly than did Mr. Howells; none, certainly, could express appreciation so truly or so fittingly. Those of the Class who are not already familiar with them will care to read these further sentences taken from the introduction just referred to.

George Pellew "was of the type which has renewed itself from time to time in the history of literature so persistently as to have become the popular ideal of the literary man. He made one think of De Quincey, of Charles Lamb, of Leigh Hunt, of all those richly intellectual and social beings who failed on the side of the practical and the commercial, and endeared themselves even by their foibles, so that they survive in a tradition of their lovableness to a generation that never knew them, but that fondly cherishes their fame as if they were each reader's personal friends. His friendliness was, in fact, the keynote of George Pellew's nature; he was as simply and wisely ready to appreciate what was good and fine, wherever he met it, as Emerson himself; and he had no more pretence, of any sort. He was instantly and gladly the equal of the person he conversed with, as soon as they found common ground in the sense of beauty or the honor of reason; for in these two this rare philosopher and poet had his being. All other things were accidents and measurably perplexities and bewilderments; he had a kind of helplessness in the presence of material facts; his quick and eager mind faltered in the struggle of life, and all his talents did not avail to win him place or profit till the last. The keenest pathos of his untimely death was in his dying when he seemed to have made even fortune his friend, and success invited him with the work for which he was always so willing. . . . . .

. . "He wished to get all life — passion, taste, motive — fully into that clear light of the intellect where he habitually dwelt, and where alone he felt himself at home, and to reason about it. In this home of his he was the most hospitable of hosts, and he impartially welcomed everyone to it. He invited you there on every possible occasion, and asked nothing better than that you should reason with him, even if you reasoned against him. If you proved him wrong, he owned himself wrong with a delighted sweetness that was utterly charming. In fact, this singularly intellectual creature had no intellectual vanity; he was divinely free of that, or the like of it. You could talk with him of a thing he had done as frankly as if someone else had done it; if it suggested any droll association, he would laugh with you as joyfully and as open-heartedly as if the joke were at the expense of any third person. . . . . "If I were to attempt any summing up of a personality so modest that impersonality seems rather the word for it, I should say that the desire to discern and to understand was the spring of George Pellew's character. The light was beautiful to him; it glorified whatever it fell upon, so that he could not feel himself alien to any human interest or any human being, when once he got either in the range of his bright intelligence. He was the most absolute democrat, esthetically and mentally, that I ever knew; and as beauty and reason were nearly all in all to him, I fancy that the province in which he consciously differenced himself from other men was very small. It could only have been that debatable land which is left from early association in us, and which in him may have been haunted by the latent prejudices of his English birth and training."

Then, after brief mention of Pellew's ancestry: "But these facts, if you knew them, were the last things you thought of in the presence of a man whose real claims on your respect relegated them to forgetfulness; and he, on the level of pure intellect, where he wished to meet everyone, could never have wished them remembered.

"There was something angelically single in his intellectual ardor, which made him the equal and contemporary of children; and he seemed to have as much pleasure in addressing their intellect as if they were of his years and learning. They all loved him, for at heart he was a child, too. But everyone loved him, and if I tried to say what I feel, I should presently be writing things which I am afraid his delicate spirit might censure for excess. I cannot imagine him dead, that vivid and potent mind, and somewhere, in the fields of asphodel, I fancy him disputing with kindred minds and making the celestial echoes answer the glad laugh with which he either won or lost a point. He was inexhaustibly interested in the universe, and has it no place in all its boundlessness for him alive?"

JAMES LANE PENNYPACKER.

HADDONFIELD, N. J., April 30.—"Since 1890 my home has been at Haddonfield, New Jersey, and the Fates have kindly spared me both accessions and losses in my family. In September, 1893, I changed my business location, joining the forces of the Christopher Sower Company of Philadelphia, Publishers.

"I am a member of the Harvard Club of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Shakespeare Society, the Archaeological Association of the University of Pennsylvania and am President of the Young Men's Literary Society of Haddonfield, a local organization of rather unusual activity and enterprise, in spite of its name.

"From April 1, 1893, to May 1, 1894, I edited as a matter of local patriotism "The Haddonfield News," a weekly newspaper which originated and died under my parental eye, my consolation being that the whole community turned out to the burial with tears and flowers.

"If any man of '80 should get lost in New Jersey during the next five years let him stop at the crossroads inn, take a drop of applejack and ask the way to Pennypacker's. In the Jersey Pines we never 'sport the oak.'"

ARTHUR PERRY.

BOSTON, April 18.—"In April, 1891, I resigned as Assistant Cashier of the Washington National Bank of Westerly, R. I., to accept the position of General Manager of the Bond Department of the Thomson-Houston Electric Company of Boston, Mass. Upon the consolidation of the Thomson-Houston Electric Co., with the Edison General Electric Company in the summer of 1892, I became General Manager of the Bond Department of the General Electric Company.

"In December, 1893, I was appointed General Manager of the United Electric Securities Company of Boston, in September, 1894, was chosen a director, and in December, 1894, vice-president of the company.

"In December, 1892, I moved with my family from Westerly, R. I., to Corey Hill, Brookline, Mass., my present address."

GEORGE MURDOCK PERRY.

NEW YORK CITY, April 20.—"My life from 1890 to 1895 has not been very eventful. I was an assistant librarian in the Astor Library until September, 1891, when I became librarian of the Harlem Library, which position I still hold. The library during this period has moved to a more favorable location, and had a large increase of members. I am a member of Good Government Club P, of this city, and of the library committee of the same.

"My address will be, Harlem Library, 32 W. 123d Street, New York City, until further notice."

ERNEST HENRY PILSBURY.

NEW YORK, April 19.—"My residence has been in Brooklyn, N. Y., since 1890, and is at present at No. 12 Lefferts Place, in said city. Have continued since said date in the practice of the law. Was admitted to the New York Bar, May, 1883. Am a member of the law firm of Wray & Pilsbury.

"Between June and September, 1892, travelled in England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium.

"Am a member of the Board of Managers of the Brooklyn Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

"Address for the next five years will doubtless be Brooklyn, N. Y., and 237 Broadway, New York City."

WESLEY FRANK PRICE.

SEDALIA, MO., June 8.—"April 28, 1892, I was married to Miss Sarah Bartlett, daughter of Mr. Benjamin C. Bartlett and Mrs. Julia Bartlett of Jerseyville, Ill. Since last report I have been pursuing the even tenor of my professional work. Am now pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church of Sedalia, Mo. This will be my address until further notice."

JOSIAH QUINCY.

Boston, March 25.—"Since the last class report I have continued to be actively interested in politics. I was again a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, from Quincy, in 1890 and 1891, having previously served two terms in 1887 and 1888. I was secretary of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts in 1890, chairman of the Executive Committee in 1891, and chairman of the committee in 1892, Governor Russell being elected successively in each of these years. I was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention of 1892, and was chosen as the Massachusetts member of the National Democratic Committee. During the national campaign I served at the head-quarters at New York as a member of the Campaign Committee, and was chairman of the Sub-committee on Campaign Literature, which had charge of the literary part of the campaign. In March, 1893, against my own desire, I was appointed Assistant Secretary of State, with the understanding that I would only hold the office temporarily, and I resigned in the following September. I was again chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts in the campaign of 1893, and resigned this position in August, 1894. Since that time I have not given as much time to politics, and I am now resuming somewhat the practice of law. In the Missions Boundary Arbitration between Brazil and the Argentine Republic, in which President Cleveland was arbitrator, I acted as counsel for the latter country, in connection with the Argentine Minister. I have some business interests which occupy a part of my time.

"My residence is in Boston.

"Address, 13 School Street, Boston, Mass."

FREDERICK JORDAN RANLETT.

Boston, May 6.—"So far as I can make responsive answers, I may tell you that I still continue in the practice of the law, my office being at 87 Milk Street, Boston, and that my foreign travel has been limited to a journey through Belgium, Holland, and England, including a month's stay in London, in the fall of 1890."

*WALTER HORTON RHETT.

Our classmate, Walter Horton Rhett, of whose tragic death you must all have heard at the time it occurred, was born in the city of Charleston, South Carolina, on January 25, 1857. His father, the Hon. R. Barnwell Rhett, of the Harvard Class of '49, and proprietor and editor of the Charleston Mercury, united the blood of the Smiths and of the Barnwells, families prominent in the history of South Carolina since its foundation as a colony. His mother was Josephine Horton, from Alabama, of reputable Virginia blood. His maternal uncle, W. Walter Horton, was a talented graduate of Yale College in the Class of '46. His early education was received entirely at the South, at first at home and afterward in various Southern educational institutions — among others at Washington and Lee College at Lexington, Va. Before he entered Harvard he thought of making journalism his profession, and, with that in view, worked as a reporter on a Charleston paper for a short time. He soon found the life distasteful and abandoned it. Finally, in April, 1877, he went to Boston, entered Harvard in June, 1877, and in the following September passed his examinations for and entered our class in the Sophomore year.

He was reserved in manner and his tastes were quiet and studious. But, if he did not make many friends, he made warm ones; for those who knew him well could not but feel and appreciate the strength of his character and the gentleness of his nature. His career as a student was a successful one; on graduation he received honorable mention in Greek, Latin and Philosophy, and, as one of six speakers selected by the faculty, he delivered a commencement part on "The Poetry of Robert Burns." He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, the Signet and other college societies.

After graduating he spent a profitable year in tutoring at Philadelphia, declining the offer of a professorship at De Veaux College, New York. The next year he spent in Europe, and used it to perfect his knowledge of modern languages. In the fall of 1882 he entered the law office of the Hon. Perry Belmont, in New York City, and in the spring of 1884 went to Atlanta, passed his bar examination, was duly admitted to practice in that city, and was soon well started upon his professional career. He quickly built up a practice, large for so young a lawyer, and was in receipt of a good professional income. For a time he was secretary of the Bar Association of Atlanta. He never resorted to any of the cheap dodges for advertisement that lawyers sometimes indulge in. He relied on his native ability and upon conscientious work to win success, and believed that the public could and would find out and appreciate men of his stamp. He was painstaking in his profession. His legal papers were models of their kind, his arguments clear, logical, concise and free from rhetorical flourish. His legal abilities commanded the respect and attention of the bar, and he was not infrequently consulted by other lawyers on matters of difficulty. Nor was his influence limited to his professional life. His character, ability and social charm were quickly felt and won him a prominent position in the social life of the city of his adoption. He became a member of the Capitol City Club and of the South Carolina Club of Atlanta, of which he was for a time the president. In society he was widely known and a general favorite.

In the summer of 1888 he married Miss Annie Raymond Reid, a bright and attractive woman, daughter of Dr. Robert Reid of Atlanta.

Established in his profession and honored and respected by the community, his prospects for the future seemed of the brightest.

In the winter of 1892 he was confined to his bed for many weeks by a severe attack of rheumatic fever or grippe, from the effects of which he never recovered. He suffered thereafter from gastritis and neuralgia; and he was often greatly depressed in spirit. During the few months preceding his death, and especially during the last few days of his life, his friends who saw him noticed that he appeared absent-minded and abstracted in manner. He owed a small sum of money, for which judgment had been recovered against him shortly before his death, and this may have had something to do with his death, though it was a matter which his family or his friends would easily have arranged if he had let them know about it; and which he certainly would not have allowed to prey upon him if he had been in a normal condition of body and of mind.

He was found dead in his office on Wednesday morning, October 4, 1893. He had shot himself through the heart with a pistol during the night — leaving no word of explanation of his deed. So it was that a life that had opened so full of promise came to an unhappy end.

I have tried to show the position he had made for himself, the love and esteem in which he was held, but I cannot feel that I have said enough. Let me quote the words of one who knew him during the last years of his life. At a meeting of the South Carolina Club, held on the occasion of his death, an address was made to the meeting by Mr. S. W. Wilkes, which was adopted by the club and of which copies were, by resolution of the club, sent to his family. I quote a portion of that address:

"Walter Rhett! Brave as an eagle, modest as a woman, sympathetic as a child, patient beyond compare! His heart-aches we can never know. For, suffering, he was silent. Sorrowing, he was strong. In the hour of gloom his smile belied the anguish within his breast. No word of complaint passed from his lips. No sigh escaped his bosom. No tear betrayed his agony of soul, whose cruel depths, 'eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, save His that sitteth upon the Throne.'

"Living amid a bounty of sympathy, he asked none. Staggering beneath a weight of cares, he fell, without a murmur. Alone, he bore his burden of sorrow, until crushed, he passed beyond them forever.

"Willing hands and friendly counsels were his for the asking. But, sensitive, lofty spirit, he would not cast a shadow athwart the lives of those who loved him. Hugging to his heart his troubles, he walked uncomplainingly the pathway, from which for him had gone all except the thorns. Painful the retrospect, dark as midnight the future. To him life seemed no longer worth living; and death a welcome relief.

"Brave, gentle, generous heart, rest in peace!"

We may judge of the opinion President Eliot had of his scholarly attainments by the fact that on the death of General Clayton, President Eliot, in response to an inquiry, recommended him for the presidency of the University of Alabama.

Those of us who knew him will always remember him as gentle, upright, courageous, self-respecting and considerate of others — a gentleman, in short, true to his birth and breeding. As we knew him, so he remained to his death. The gentleman in whose home he lived during the last fourteen months of his life said of him, that he never during all that time heard him utter a harsh word or saw him even make an impatient gesture. L. M. G.

WILLIAM KING RICHARDSON.

BOSTON, April 9.—"Since 1890 I have practised law at 40 Water Street, Boston, as a member of the firm of Fish, Richardson & Storrow. I am not married. I have spent short vacations in the summers of 1890, 1892 and 1894 in England, the Dolomite Country and Brittany. I have been fortunate in holding no offices, and my authorship has been confined to numerous briefs and a few newspaper articles, while my only addresses have been to the courts.

"My address will continue as above, for the next five years, so far as I know."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 25.—"Since 1890 my residence has been Washington, D. C., in winter, Oyster Bay, Long Island, in summer, except when I was on my ranch on the Little Missouri or on a hunting trip. I have been United States Civil Service Commissioner all the time, having been appointed such May 9, 1889.

"I now have five children. My third child, a second son, Kermit, was born October 15, 1889. My fourth child, Ethel, August 10, 1891. My fifth child, Archibald Bulloch, April 9, 1894.

"I haven't made any journey in foreign countries, save a flying trip to England and France early in '91, but I have made several hunting trips in the Rocky Mountains, which were a good deal more important and interesting than going to Europe.

"Civil Service Commissioner is about all the office I have held.

"My History of New York was published in 1891; my Wilderness Hunter in 1893; the third volume of the Winning of the West in 1894. I have written for the Century, Atlantic Monthly, and Forum on various occasions, but I do not recollect the dates and titles of the pieces now. I don't remember how many addresses I made at public meetings.

"Except the fact that I have been annually investigated by Congress and have made about monthly investigations of other officials myself I do not know that I have had many interesting experiences, unless you include bear hunting in the list.

"My name is Theodore Roosevelt; my address, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y."

EUGENE DEXTER RUSSELL.

Lynn, April 16.—"I continued my residence at Waltham, Mass., till September, 1891, when I removed to Lynn, Mass. I am still a cultivator of cerebral convolutions, as principal of the Lynn Classical High School.

"Since the last report the birth of another daughter, Dorothy, born October 18, 1890, has demonstrated to my satisfaction that three of a kind beat two pairs.

"No journeys.

"In 1893 I became vice-president of the Massachusetts Teachers' Annuity Guild, and still hold the office. In the same year I was elected president of the Essex County Teachers' Institute, also president of the Massachusetts High School Masters' Club, and was re-elected president of the Lynn Educational Association.

"The only strictly public addresses I have made are four delivered to the citizens of Lynn, one at the dedication of the high school building, and three commencement addresses at graduations, all published in the annual reports of the City of Lynn. I have in addition addressed numerous clubs and educational conferences.

"Considering the fact that I have never from birth lived five consecutive years in the same place, I hesitate, even at the secretary's request, to state my address for the next five years."

RICHARD MIDDLECOTT SALTONSTALL.

Boston, April 20.—"I have resided since 1890 at Chestnut Hill, Mass., where last year I built a house on land given to me by my father, and have been engaged in business as a lawyer in general practice, having an office in the Sears Building, Boston, Mass.

"On the 17th day of October, 1891, I married Eleanor Brooks, daughter of Mr. Peter C. Brooks and Sarah Lawrence Brooks, of Boston. On the 1st day of September, 1892, my son, Leverett Saltonstall, was born, and on the 19th day of October, 1894, my daughter (yet unnamed) was born.

"I have made no extended trips in foreign countries since last report, held no offices and published no books. My regular life is that of a lawyer engaged in a practice which engrosses all my time. My name and address for the next five years will remain as before Richard M. Saltonstall, Sears Building, Boston, Mass."

*CHESTER FRANKLIN SANGER.

Chester Franklin Sanger, the eldest son of Warren and Lucy J. (Allen) Sanger, was born in Somerville, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, December 22, 1858. He was a direct descendant of Richard Sanger, who came from England in 1636, and settled in Hingham, Mass. For a short time he attended a private school, but at the age of six, by special arrangement, he was sent to a primary school in Cambridge, and, as his father soon afterward removed to that city, he received his education in its public schools and in Harvard College, which he entered in 1876.

Almost immediately after his graduation in 1880, he entered the law office of Morse & Allen in Boston, where he studied for three years. He was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in 1883, and from that time until his death, was engaged in the active practice of his profession.

On the 25th of June, 1884, Mr. Sanger was married in Cambridge, to Gertrude Flint, only daughter of Horace P. and Lydia L. (Flint) Blackman. Their son, Paul Allen Sanger, was born July 15, 1885. While still a law student, Mr. Sanger was keenly interested in politics. He was a Republican, and worked energetically and yet with conscience for the advancement of party principles and party measures. For five years he was treasurer of the Republican City Committee in Cambridge, and in 1887, he was a member of the Common Council of that city from Ward 5. In 1888, he was a member of the House of Representatives from the First Middlesex District, and was returned in 1889.

He was a member in the Legislature of the Committee on Probate and Insolvency, and was chairman of the Library Committee, and also of the Committee on Drainage. His activity in this last position procured the passage of a bill which provided for a Metropolitan System of Sewage affecting a sixth of the population of the State.

His frankness in debate, his business-like habits in committee, his absolute integrity, his untiring industry, made him one of the most valuable members of the House. It was more of a surprise to him, therefore, than to his friends, when in October, 1889, Governor Ames appointed him Justice of the Third District Court of Eastern Middlesex, a life position. This district embraced Cambridge, Belmont and Arlington ; it contained 80,000 population, and was the third largest in the State.

Judge Sanger was but 31 years of age when he took the bench, and almost immediately cases were brought before him difficult in themselves, and additionally difficult because they involved the name of his Alma Mater. I refer to the cases against certain college clubs for violation of the Cambridge Liquor Law, which at the time excited hot discussion in college circles and in the press. In spite of the sympathy which a young man might be expected to feel for other young men of his own college, especially when many of the members of these societies did not personally use the opportunities for drinking provided at their club rooms, he, nevertheless, gave his decision against the students without fear or favor.

Early in 1891 he formed a partnership in the law business with Samuel W. McCall, under the title of McCall & Sanger. From 1886 he was a frequent and valued contributor to the press.

On the 14th of October, 1891, he was attacked with what seemed grippe ; soon typhoid fever developed, which passed into jaundice — a very unusual complication — from which disorders he died on Tuesday, November 10th. His loss was a bitter one for his family to which he was endeared by every domestic virtue, and it was a serious one for the institutions and causes with which he was identified.

The mold in which Judge Sanger was cast is a rare one. There was something Roman about his character, his mind, and his physique. He was practical rather than theoretical in his view of life. This was shown in a number of scientific aptitudes he possessed and by the manual skill which he showed in his experiments. In politics his practical spirit showed itself in his allegiance to the Republican party when many of his friends, more speculative about politics than himself, were openly dissatisfied with its aims and methods, or were actively enlisted against it.

He believed in it as the best exponent of American political life, and as the best political agency at his hand for assisting him in carrying out the objects he felt to be of great importance to his city, to his state and to the country.

This practical spirit showed itself in his work in the Legislature. Although he was a strong debater, he was not satisfied with forensic triumph, but was laborious in the routine work of the House, and his influence with his colleagues was founded upon their regard for his keen judgment, his straightforward manner, and his unshrinking devotion to his duties.

As a judge, he showed impartiality, firmness, and if necessary, severity; but during his brief occupancy of the bench, he secured the respect and regard of those who appeared before him in his court. Under the rule of his judgeship, he was permitted to transact such legal business as had no relation to his court. As a lawyer, he was clear and sound in his judgment and painstaking in his reading for a case. Both the bench and the bar lost through his death a man of a peculiar legal mind and character.

Again the image of the Roman comes to me in thinking of Judge Sanger. It may be because he was a type of Puritan, yet with breadth and liberality of thought. His shapely head and strong shoulders reminded one of the Roman athlete. His practical mind, his just opinions, and his energy of action made one think again of that ancient seat and source of our law.

He was not cold in his manner, and his conversation at all times was direct and natural, but a new friendship was to him, as it was to Emerson, an event. The circle of friends to whom he unbosomed himself, therefore, was enlarged with deliberation. He had the strength of character of the Puritan, with a liberality of thought and geniality of manner that gave him, in all the relations of life, power and charm.

VAN DER LYNN STOW.

San Francisco, April 9.— "My residence has been San Francisco, in which city I was admitted as a member of the firm of Thomas Day & Co., in 1882. I was married in October, 1885, to Bessie W. Ellis, daughter of Anna W. Ellis and the late Col. Henry Ashfield Ellis, U. S. A. A son, Ashfield Ellis, was born in August, 1889. I have made no journeys into foreign countries. Am a member of the Harvard, University and Bohemian Clubs.

"My address will be San Francisco."

FRANK OVERTON SUIRE.

Cincinnati, O., March 23.—"My residence, since 1890, has been Cincinnati, Ohio ; my occupation, attorney and counsellor at law. I was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Ohio, and the other State courts, in the spring of 1882, and in the United States Courts about the same time. My business has been the practice of law, and I am not a member of any firm. The only degree I hold, except the Harvard A. B., is a LL. B. from the law school of the Cincinnati College. I am a member of the University Club of Cincinnati, the Riding Club, "The Pillars," Cincinnati Bar Association, Cincinnati Law Library Association and the Young Men's Democratic Club. I am not married. The circumstances and experiences of the life of a more or less busy lawyer will not be of much interest to the class, and therefore I omit any mention.

"My address for the next five years, I trust, will be the same as before, No. 25 Wiggins Block, Cincinnati, Ohio."

*WILLIAM HOUSTON TALBOTT.

Died in Indianapolis, Ind., April 9, 1894. A memorial sketch should have been printed in this Report. It will be prepared and sent to the members of the class this summer, and printed in the next Class Report.

ARTHUR TAYLOR.

Boston, March 22.—"My residence is now, and has been since 1890, as before, Boston, Mass. I am still engaged in the practice of the law.

"My address is 53 State Street, Boston, Mass."

WILLIAM GEORGE LANGWORTHY TAYLOR.

Lincoln, Nebraska, March 28.—"Two of your questions may be met by me with the same answer: I hold the position of Adjunct Professor at the head of the Department of Political and Economic Science in the State University of Nebraska. Profession and official position thus coincide, in my case. This is my second year as a teacher in this institution, and is the first time I have had any real business or official position of more than a temporary nature. The work agrees with me remarkably well. It is that into which I have naturally developed by differentiating all my youthful impulses and ambitions. The uncharitable might say that I had taken the usual refuge of unsuccessful lawyers. My own answer is to invite any of my successful lawyer friends to step into my shoes for a few days and handle such questions as the standard of deferred payments, banking as an organic development in exchange, and the law of substitution. I think a cold sweat would inadequately indicate their sentiments.

"'To those that have shall be given.' When the careful living of many years had ripened me, I had a good opening; with practical activity, more vigor has come, and I do not see but that, all in all, I am turning out as large a product as any other worker.

"I must mention, however, a circumstance that is to be attributed largely to good fortune, and which counts for a very large part of this year's success. On the 21st of last June I was united in marriage with Frances Chamberlain Brown, daughter of Chas. Ferdinand and Dolly (Parker) Brown.

"Mrs. Taylor (A. B., Smith, 1882, A. M., Smith, 1885 — studied history a year at Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford University, and economics and political science two years at University of Chicago) is a descendant of Peter Brown, a Mayflower passenger. Her age may be judged by the fact that her birth nearly coincided with the killing of her father at the head of his regiment at Champion's Hill.

"Lincoln is a pleasant town, and the faculty of the University is composed of well-equipped, unpretentious, congenial men. Outside of the University I can count our classmate, John Doane, and his excellent wife among many good friends.

"Until I came to Lincoln, my residence continued with my parents in New York City.

"On December 30, 1890, I read before the American Historical Association, at its annual meeting in Washington, a paper entitled 'Bismarck as the Typical German.' (Papers of the American Historical Association, vol. V., Parts 1–2.)

"On June 3, 1892, a three-column article by me appeared in the Burlington Hawkeye. The title was 'The Milk in the Cocoanut.' A Reply to Mr. Richard Spencer's 'What is money?'

"I have an article in the May number of the Nebraska Literary Magazine, entitled 'Distributive Justice.'

"I am a member of the University Club of New York City, of the Phi Beta Kappa Club of the same place, and of the Political Economy Club of the University of Nebraska.

"In order that I may not be inextricably mixed up and lost in the wide-spreading branches of the Sartorial family tree, I intend to write my signature, in the future, W. G. Langworthy Taylor."

JOHN SEVER TEBBETS.

Chicago, March 23.— "From July 1, 1890, to June 30, 1891, I was Vice-president and General Manager of the Union Pacific Coal Co., part of the time headquarters at Omaha, part of the time at Denver, Colo. From July 1, 1891, to June 30, 1892, I was doing some special work, but with no regular occupation. July, 1892, I went with the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., spending two months in their Pittsburgh factory and the latter part of August, 1892, came here as Manager of their Chicago Agency where I have since been.

"Address, J. S. Tebbets, 710 New York Life Bldg., Chicago, Ill."

JOHN JACOB THOMSEN.

Baltimore, April 4.— "Since 1890 I have been in the drug business. Became a member of the firm of J. J. Thomsen's Sons, December, 1892. Present address, 16 West Madison Street, Baltimore, Maryland."

HOWARD TOWNSEND.

RICHARD TRIMBLE.

FREDERIC ALLISON TUPPER.

QUINCY, MASS., March 23.—"From 1890 to 1892 I continued my principalship at the Arms Academy, Shelburne Falls, Mass. In August, 1892, I was elected Head Master of the Quincy, Massachusetts, High School, and still hold that position.

"I was married September 5, 1892, to Grace Emma, daughter of Francis J. Canedy, M D., and Emma (Chase) Canedy, of Shelburne Falls, Mass.

"I am a member of the Quincy Historical Society, the Quincy Golf Club, the Quincy Teachers' Association, the Harvard Teachers' Association, and was the first president of the Franklin County Harvard Club.

"In 1890 I published a volume of poems entitled, 'Echoes from Dreamland.' The genial critic of the Atlantic Monthly remarked: 'This volume contains the shell of poetry.' Whether he meant Apollo's shell, the rind of the official pumpkin, or the usual accompaniment of shot, I cannot say. Probably the second supposition is measurably correct. Other critics were kinder, and, after all, a man does, says, or thinks anything pretty largely at his own risk.

"Contributions of mine have appeared in 'Picturesque Franklin,' 'Picturesque Berkshire,' and 'The Centennial Gazette,' of Greenfield, Mass. I have written stories, verses, and other articles for the Boston Transcript, The Journal of Education, The School Journal, The Springfield Republican, The Worcester Spy, and several other publications. A 'religious' weekly accepted and published a story of mine, and then declined to pay for it on the ground that no special bargain had been made. I am not in favor of probation, either before, during, or after death, for such editors.

"At the dedication of our new Quincy High School, September, 1894, I not only received the keys, and a flag which, as I understand, I am to defend at the risk of my life, but I also wrote a hymn for the occasion, and published a long dedicatory 'poem.' Someway, as I write this, I think of Captain Costigan and the numerous toasts to which he responded.

"The Magazine of Poetry, Buffalo, N. Y., published in the issue of September, 1894, a sketch of my life by Joseph M. Sheahan, M. D. (Harvard, '73), together with about a dozen of my poems.

"In August, 1893, I took the Boston Examinations for Teachers. Either the supervisors or I made a bad error in judgment with regard to the time of these examinations, as I found, to my astonishment, at the close of the test, that I was suffering not simply from the logical consequences of examinations but also from typhoid fever, and, furthermore, that the aforesaid fever had been my faithful companion during each examination. Such being the case, you will be pleased to learn that I got my certificate. After an illness of four months I resumed my duties, and while I have been at my post ever since, I am confident that I could write an encyclopædia on the nervous symptoms that follow an attack of typhoid fever. If this class report of mine is one of the symptoms, deal gently with it.

"My address for the next five years is, 4 Linden Place, Quincy, Mass."

BRADFORD STRONG TURPIN.

MAGNOLIA ST, ROXBURY, MASS., May 17.—"I have nothing to report of interest to the class. My address for the present will be as above."

JOHN LATHROP WAKEFIELD.

BOSTON, May 8.—"I have lived at Dedham since 1890 and practised law in Boston. Until March of this year I was with the Massachusetts Title Insurance Company. After the retirement of Col. Arnold A. Rand from the management of the Company in February, I was offered the position of manager, but decided to decline it and return to private practice. On March first, Arnold A. Rand, Alfred C. Vinton, Edward A. Wilkie and I formed a partnership under the firm name of Rand, Vinton and Wakefield, having especially in view the practise of the law of real property, conveyancing and trusts. I am happy to say that so far the new firm has found plenty of work to do.

"I am still unmarried and have done nothing sufficiently noteworthy to be mentioned. I am a member of the University Club, the Reform Club and various other clubs and societies, and am president of the Dedham Boat Club. My address is 19 Milk Street, Boston."

CHARLES WARE.

118 Joralemon St., Brooklyn, May 22.—"Since 1890 I have lived in Brooklyn at the above address, and have been engaged in the practice of my profession Mrs. Ware died in 1887, after a long illness. I have not married again, and I have no family.

"The summer of 1892 I spent in Europe, the spring of 1894 in Bermuda, and in March of this year I sailed for Mediterranean, visiting the Azores, Gibraltar, Algiers and returned after a few weeks' trip in Italy. At Gibraltar Almy joined the steamer, and on my return from Genoa I had my old friend Opdycke for a fellow passenger, who with his wife and son were returning home after a winter spent in the south of France."

CHARLES EVERETT WARREN.

Roslindale, Mass.—"I resided at 51 Union Park, Boston, up to August 1, 1893, when I removed to South Hollis, Maine, remaining on a farm until September, 1894. In October, 1894, I moved to Mt. Hope, where I have since resided and shall doubtless continue to reside for several years to come, not 'Two in a Tower' but in a 'House on a Hill.'

"It is quite evident as time passes that Hymen hasn't got my name on the list or has overlooked it. Certain it is he has not yet lighted his torch or forged his fetters for me. No doubt I have an affinity somewhere but she has not yet materialized.

"Traveled in Cuba in March, 1893. This has been my only absence from 'The States.'

"Was Vice-president of the Young Men's Republican Club of Ward 17, Boston, during '92 and '93. Have become a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, the Veteran Fusileers and the Boston Medical Library Association since 1890.

"My work has been of rather a desultory nature owing to sickness and accidents of circumstance. In 'A Land that is Hotter than This' I described my impressions of Cuba in Press Letters, published in a series of newspapers with which I correspond. A number of short stories have been published in various papers over the pseudonym Leon Noel, a name which you will observe reads the same both ways, backwards as forwards. In medicine, among a number of articles I would especially mention 'Genocatachresia,' (a word of my own coinage) printed in the St. Louis Medical and Surgical Journal, 1892, serial. Prognostic Aphorisms, idem, 1893, serial. A Brief Outline of Dosimetric Indications, Medical World, 1892. Dosimetric Materia Medica, Times and Register, 1892, serial. Hydrogen Peroxide and Ethyl Iodide in Asthma, Medical Age, 1893. Dysmenorrhoea, Medical Fortnightly, 1894. Condylomata, ibid.

"I am at present publishing Card Notes Current, being notes upon Medical Subjects, printed on standard, library, catalogue cards. During the past year I have devoted most of my time to the perfecting of the methods and in connection with it am organizing a Medical Press Association on the lines of the Associated Press.

"My life during the past five years has been full of events, both serious and comical, but they would fail to have the same interest to the class that they have to me. Since October, 1894, I have been one of the extended family of 'Shut-Ins,' having on that day accidentally encountered a locomotive, in transit, coming off with a broken arm, two broken ribs and severe internal injuries, according to newspaper reports. Then the influenza got me in its 'Grip' and capped the climax.

"I shall probably be in Europe during 1896. My address is Charles Everett Warren, M. D., 40 Sherwood St., Roslindale, Mass.

CHARLES GRENFILL WASHBURN.

WORCESTER, May 3.—"During the winter of 1890-91 my wife and I went to Egypt. March 19, 1892, a daughter, Elizabeth, was born to us, but only lived a few hours. Since August, 1892, I have been practising law in Worcester, which will continue to be my address."

HENRY RANDALL WEBB.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Since 1890, I have been engaged in the practice of my profession, that of law, and I am a member of the firm of Webb & Webb.

"On June 11, 1890, I married Maria Ingle, of Frederick, Maryland, daughter of Rev. Osborne Ingle and Mary Mills (Addison) Ingle.

"We have one child, Mary Addison Ingle, born September 4th, 1892.

"I have been for some years a member of the Cosmos Club, the literary and scientific club of Washington, and a member of the Harvard Club since its organization. I was a member of the University Club, but resigned two years ago.

"I am a member of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and I have been Secretary of the Board of Directors of the Washington Law Reporter since January, 1894. I am also Secretary of the Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital of this city.

"My address for the next five years will no doubt be Webb & Webb, 406 5th Street, Washington, D. C."

RICHARD WARD GREENE WELLING.

New York, March 25.—"I have continued to practise law in New York since 1890. No partners. Unmarried. Summer of 1891, abroad for several weeks, a trip of no special interest. Summer of 1892, in Japan and China, making a trip in a small boat up the Pearl River. Summer of 1894, mountain climbing in the Grand Teton Range of the Rocky Mountains, Wyoming. Although this does not come under the head of foreign countries mentioned in your suggestion, yet this range possesses such uncommon interest and has been so little climbed that I thought it worth mentioning. I have joined the Century, Racquet, and Riding Clubs, and I helped to organize the City Club.

"My evenings have been taken up almost wholly during the last three years with the problem of municipal government in one form or another, organizing good government clubs in this city and elsewhere. These clubs are formed to carry out the principle of separating municipal from State and National politics. Incidentally they enforce the principles of Home Rule, Ballot Reform and Civil Service Reform.

"I have been and am chairman of the committee of the City Club that undertook the organization of good government clubs in this city and State."

FAIRFAX HENRY WHEELAN.

San Francisco, Cal., April 23.—"The last report found me at Santa Barbara, acting as Secretary and Manager of the Southern Mill & Warehouse Co., a corporation that owned and conducted six warehouses along the line of the Southern Pacific R. R. On January 1, 1894, the Southern Mill & Warehouse Co. was consolidated with the Southern Pacific Milling Co. The latter corporation now owns twenty-four warehouses along the line of the S. P. R. R. in Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties. I came to San Francisco on March 17, 1894, to manage the central office for the consolidated companies. I hold the position of Vice-President and Manager of the Southern Pacific Milling Co., and Vice-President and Manager of the Salinas Valley Lumber Co. The lumber company conducts twelve lumber yards in the Salinas Valley.

"On August 1, 1891, a son, Fairfax Randall Wheelan, was born. Needless to say, he's a treasure.

"I have done a little work, from time to time, in St. Nicholas, Youth's Companion and the S. S. McClure's Newspaper Syndicate. Mrs. Wheelan has illustrated most of the efforts.

"I was President of the Santa Barbara Club for two years, am the present Secretary of the Harvard Club of San Francisco, and am also a member of the University Club.

"My address for the next five years will be, Care of Southern Pacific Milling Co., San Francisco, Cal.

"I know of no class that quite fills the place of '80. Thrice happy those that entered in '76! In the blessed four years that followed Harvard was accustomed to win nearly everything. And now——!"

WILLIAM HOWARD WHITE.

BOSTON, May 8.—"During the past five years I have lived at Brookline, Mass., and have devoted most of my time and thought to the practise of law.

"In 1893 I was a member of the Massachusetts Legislature.

"The only public office I hold at present is that of chairman of the Board of Civil-Service Examiners for the town of Brookline. I am also a director of the Boston Children's Aid Society, and a member of the executive committee of the New-England Free Trade League. "My address is 87 Milk Street, Boston."

FREDERICK ERWIN WHITING.

BOSTON, MASS., April 8.—"Residence, Auburndale, Mass. Occupation, helping get out the Boston Herald. I was admitted as a member of the firm in 1888.

"No change since last report. No more wives and no more children.

"The only foreign journey I have made has just been completed, a 30-days' trip to Jamaica.

"Barring directorships in various companies in which I am interested, the only office I have held has been that of president of the Press Club from March, '93 to March, '95.

"I am a member of the following clubs: University, Algonquin, Press, Exchange, Boston Athletic Association, and Merchants' Club of Boston, Hancock Co. Fishing and Game Club of Maine; Inglewood Fishing and Game Club of N. B., Eastern Yacht Club; Jeffray's Yacht Club; Cape Ann Yacht Club; Newton Boat Club; and Players' Club."

ALFRED WILKINSON.

SYRACUSE, April 4.—"During the past five years I have continued to live in Syracuse, and to practise law, devoting my time entirely to the law relating to patents for inventions. Last autumn I formed a partnership under the firm name of Wilkinson & Fowler. My special practise involves so much traveling in this country that I have had no time for the last five years for any long journeys, and have not been outside of the United States, even to Canada.

"For the past ten years I have been Treasurer of the Syracuse State Institution, which is the only office I have ever held. I belong to several clubs in Syracuse, and in New York City to the Harvard and to the University.

"My address will continue to be Syracuse, N. Y."

WILLIAM CRAWFORD WINLOCK.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—"Since the class report of 1890 was issued I have lived in Washington, and have retained my connection with the Smithsonian Institution. I was appointed 'Assistant in Charge of Office' October 1, 1891, a position which I hold in addition to that of Curator of Exchanges, the duties being almost entirely administrative: and from August 3 to September 26, 1892, I was Acting Secretary of the Institution in the absence of the Secretary and Assistant Secretary. I was a delegate from the Institution at the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the American Philosophical Society, in Philadelphia, May 22–26, 1894.

"I was elected in 1890 a member of the preliminary reorganization of the Society of the Cincinnati of Virginia.

"My publications have been chiefly official reports, and annual reviews of the progress of astronomy issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

"Address: Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C."

ROBERT WINSOR.

WESTON, April 30.—"Banker; partner in firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. since January 1, 1894.

JOHN WOODBURY.

BOSTON, March 26.—"I continue to practise law in Boston, and live in Lynn, the place of my birth. I also have an office at Lynn, mostly for the care of property in my charge, and I have many local interests there. I have been, for the past two years, president of the Lynn Board of Trade, and am a trustee in several local institutions. I am a member of the Union Club of Boston, the Odd Volume Club (a club of bibliophiles), the Oxford Club of Lynn, and the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts. I am secretary of the Trustees of Public Reservations, a board for the purpose of holding and opening to the public beautiful and historical places in Massachusetts.

"Address, 517 Exchange Building, Boston."

FROM THE "CLASS BABY."

DEAR MR. ALMY: WOBURN, June 12th.

In answer to your letter, I will write what I have been doing this year. I go to the Boston Latin School, having been admitted last September. I am a member of the junior class of the Boston Athletic Association and like it very much. I go up every Tuesday and Thursday, and sometimes Saturday. I played full back on my class team and catch or pitcher on the base ball nine. We live ten miles out from Boston, so I have to get up every morning at six o'clock. I spent last summer at Hull and expect to go to the same place this summer.

I played in several foot-ball and base-ball games this year in which we lost only one. At the gymnasium I have gone 15½ feet in the running broad jump. I weigh 105 pounds and I am 5 feet 2 inches high. I remain, Yours truly, H. C. DODGE.

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

The record of temporary members is incomplete. All are included who have subscribed to any of the class funds, whether they have been heard from or not. As for the rest, each has been asked twice to report himself, and the answers received are printed here. This report is sent only to those who have taken the trouble to contribute to it or to the class fund.

WILLIAM T. ANDREWS.

BOSTON, June 6.—"In the spring of 1892 I went abroad and spent a year in traveling through Italy, including Sicily, where I passed most of the winter and spring of 1892-3, returning thence to America.

"With the beginning of 1894 I was again on my way to Europe, where I spent several months in Florence and Venice, with a trip into the Tyrol in the summer and back home again in the autumn. During the past winter I made a sojourn at the Bermuda Islands.

"I am not engaged in any business at present.

"My address is 119 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass."

WILLIAM R. BARBOUR.

DENVER, COL., June 4.—"There has been no change in my residence or occupation since the last report. I am still practising law in Denver, where I was admitted to the bar in 1888, after my removal from New York.

"My marriage was reported in 1890. The names of my children with the dates of their birth are:

"Alexander Lambert Barbour, born Sept. 7, 1891.

"Edward Lambert Barbour, born Aug. 3, 1893.

"Fortunately I have no deaths to report. Nor, and perhaps this is also fortunate, can I report that I have held any office.

"I am a member of the University Club of Denver, the Candlelight Club and the Colorado Yale Association.

"My activity has been purely professional, as have also been all my addresses, and I cannot say that I have had any experiences which would interest the class.

"My address for the next five years will be the same as for the last five, Colorado National Bank Building, Denver, Colorado."

JOHN C. BOND.

SOMERVILLE, MASS., June 5.—"My residence and occupation are the same as in 1890.

"Some literary activity in a social way, but not of enough importance to deserve the name of 'article' or 'address,' and a somewhat extensive interest in music, are, perhaps, the only interesting additions to my contribution to the last Class Report.

"Address 27 Springfield Street, Somerville, Mass."

EDWARD BROOKS.

HYDE PARK, MASS., June 3.—"Since your last report of the Class of '80, nothing has transpired in my life worthy of recording."

HENRY D. BURNHAM.

BOSTON, June 3.—"Since the last report, 1890, I have spent most of the winters in Boston, and summers in Europe, traveling, etc.

"Not in business.

"Club membership same as last report.

"No more children.

"Address Somerset Club, Boston."

MIGHELLS BACHMAN BUTLER.

FREDERIC E. CHANDLER.

DORCHESTER, MASS., June 5.—"From '90 to '92 I was practising dentistry in Paris, France. I came home after an absence of eleven years, to see my folks and friends, in May, '92, and spent the summer here. I went back to France in the fall, sold out my business and came home again, and after wandering over the States for nearly a year finally got to Boston and then to Dorchester.

"I am unmarried, and belong to no American societies, although a member, honoris causâ, of the 'Cercle des Mirlitons' of Strasburg, and of the 'Société Chorale de la Robertsau.'

"My address will be for the next five years, unless something unforeseen happens, 5 Ashland Street, Dorchester, Mass."

EDWARD K. CLARKE.

San Francisco, Cal., June 6.—"Residence since 1890, San Francisco; occupation, agricultural; unmarried; not travelled, except to Columbian Exposition; member of Cosmos Club of San Francisco; address, 2119 California St., S. F."

NATHANIEL HENCHMAN DAVIS.

Cincinnati, June 3.—"Have continued to reside, and practise law, in Cincinnati, and have also been engaged in business enterprises, having been an officer, or director, in seven railroad, manufacturing and business corporations.

"My son, Chase Henchman, was born May 4, 1891.

"Corresponding Secretary Cincinnati Bar Association; Member Board of County Visitors, Hamilton County, Ohio; Trustee of the Children's Home of Cincinnati; Trustee of the Associated Charities; Vice-President of the University Club, Harvard Club, and of The Historical and Philosophical Society of Ohio; President of the Citizens' (municipal reform) Club, Director Civil Service Reform Association; member of the Pillars (Country Club), etc.

THOMAS C. DAY.

BARNSTABLE, MASS., June 3.—"Since 1890 I have resided in Barnstable, Mass., where I now practise as an Attorney at Law, having been admitted in October, 1880.

"In February, 1894, I was appointed Collector of Customs at this port by President Cleveland.

"The only club to which I now belong is the Boston Athletic.

"My address is Thomas C. Day, Barnstable, Mass., and expect to remain in Barnstable for the next five years."

ANTON LEISTER.

BRUNSWICK, O., June 6.—"With the exception of two months spent in Michigan in 1891, I have lived in Brunswick continuously since 1890. As before, I live in a small wood-colored, time and weather-beaten cottage, among evergreen, hickory and apple-trees. I am here all alone with my books, violins, bicycle, typewriter, joys and sorrows. As before, I board at the next neighbors the year round at $1.50 per week." Leister has had several sicknesses since 1890, some of them of long duration, but says: "Since April, 1895, I have improved greatly in strength, and am working, writing and ready to begin over again. Financially, these sicknesses have brought in easy sight the low watermark."

Has had many articles published in different journals, on the silver question, on violin-making, on farm work of different kinds, on disinfectants, food, etc., including a serial story called "How the Mortgage was paid."

Leister sends best wishes to all his former class-mates. They will be interested in this report from one who is well-remembered as one of our most brilliant scholars.

*THOMAS WILLIAM LUDLOW.

Died at Yonkers, N. Y., April 17, 1894. A memorial sketch should have been printed in this report. It will be prepared and sent to the members of the class this summer, and printed in the next Class Report. The following statement is from the card which was mailed to the class soon after his death :

THOMAS WILLIAM LUDLOW, son of Thomas W. Ludlow, Jr. and Frances Fraser (Bettner) Ludlow, was born at Yonkers, N. Y., January 7, 1857. He was fitted for Harvard abroad and at St. John's School, Sing Sing, N. Y., and entered college with the Class of 1880. January 16, 1879, he married Harriet Frances Carnochan of New York City, and immediately sailed for Europe where he remained for more than a year, spending much of the time in Athens. He subsequently received his degree as of the Class of 1882, and in 1883 received the degree of A. M. from Columbia.

He was a member of the editorial staff of the New York Evening Telegram from July, 1884 to September, 1885 ; of the New York Herald from September, 1885 to January, 1886 ; and of the Century Dictionary from its inception in 1886 to its completion, with special charge of the subjects of archæology and art. He was secretary of the American School of Classical Studies, at Athens, from the time of its foundation in 1882, and was a member of several learned societies of this country and of Europe. For some years his health was delicate, and he died in Yonkers, April 17, 1894, of acute laryngitis, leaving a wife and five children.

COLLEGE FUND.

To Balance, June 1, 1890,	$181.05	By Final Transfer (1890), College to Window Fund,	$ 39.20
" Payments,	85.00	" Balance to new account,	226.85
	$266.05		$266.05

NOTE.—The Class holds a 6 per cent. mortgage on real estate in Buffalo for $1,500, which, with its balance on hand of $879.72, makes a total of $2,379.72. About $900 is still owing and unpaid on the Class Fund, much of which can be collected. A more complete statement of this unpaid balance, and a certificate from an auditing committee that the above report has been examined, will be printed this summer and mailed to the members of the Class, together with the memorial notices spoken of in the preface. The Secretary's sudden trip to Europe this spring, and his late return, are responsible for many faults in this report, but it seemed important to have it ready for distribution to the members of the Class at the fifth triennial dinner this June. F. A.
